DESSYE, Ethiopia, Feb. 10.—Italian war planes bombed Dessye the third time yesterday. Evacuation of the city by all the population except the Emperor and his personal guard kept the casualty list down to two dead and four wounded.

For more than an hour seven Italian bombers rained bombs on the Ethiopian army headquarters which appeared to be another attempt to harm Haile Selassie. According to Ethiopian accounts, the Emperor once more manned an anti-aircraft gun. Other persons fired with rifles at the planes. The Emperor ordered the populace to find shelter outside the town.

Several native huts near the imperial palace were blown up, but the palace itself was not hit.

On Dec. 6 and 7 Italian planes killed between 30 and 50 Ethiopians and wounded 200 in raids. The courtyard of the American Seventh Day Adventist mission in Dessye was hit by bombs.

Details of Bombing.

The new bombing followed several days' reconnaissance by Italian aircraft. The first three bombs appeared over the city from the east at 9:10 a. m., first striking around the surrounding hills. Points of vantage beyond the city, newspaper correspondents could see the planes unload their high explosives and incendiary bombs over outlying settlements.

Later the first three bombers were joined by four planes which flew directly for the imperial palace, dropping their bombs.

Suddenly the second group of four Capronis swung toward the Dessye Airport, where two unarmored Ethiopian planes were standing on the field. No attempt was made to take up the Ethiopian planes. Bombs made huge holes in the landing field, but did no damage to the Ethiopian planes.

The Emperor, shaking off members of his retinue who tried to take him to a bomb-proof dugout near his palace, rushed into the open at the first sound of the approaching planes.

Warning Drums Sounded.

When the Italian planes were first sighted, shots were fired and drums boomed a warning that sent residents scurrying in their white capes into the hills, where dugouts and caves were filled with frightened people.

Most of the villagers covered their faces with wet rags, in the belief that gas bombs would be dropped. There was a slight rain, the smoke hanging low in the dense atmosphere over the city made it seem that all of Dessye was burning.

Dessye, heretofore the concentration point of Ethiopian warriors as the Emperor's headquarters, has been evacuated by fighting tribesmen during the last few days, with all warriors having been ordered to the Tembien front in the north and the Somali front in the south.

Two Bombs Reported Aimed at Dutch Ambulance.

ADDIS ABABA, Feb. 10.—The Ethiopian Government announced today that one person had been killed and five wounded in yesterday's bombing of Dessye by Italian planes. The Government said 10 of the bombs were aimed at a Dutch ambulance.

The communiqué follows: "Dessye was bombed at 9:45 a. m. Sunday. One person was killed and three wounded. One hundred incendiary and explosive bombs were dropped.

The villages near Dessye were bombed and one woman and one child were wounded.

The first two bombs visibly exploded and a Dutch ambulance

ROOSEVELT'S PET "QUODDY"
PROJECT HITS FINANCIAL SNAGHouse Committee Refuses Appropriation for Florida Ship Canal and Four Other Works.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—The House Appropriations Committee today broke with the administration's works program on river and harbor and flood control projects, by refusing appropriations for five major projects involving $29,000,000.

The projects to which the committee turned a deaf ear in recommendations on non-military activities of the War Department and the expenditures requested for each for the 1937 fiscal year were:

Passamaquoddy tidal power project in Maine, $9,000,000.

The Atlantic-Gulf ship canal, Florida, $12,000,000.

Sardis Reservoir, Mississippi, $2,500,000.

Conchas Dam, New Mexico, $3,500,000.

Bluestone Reservoir, West Virginia, $2,000,000.

The committee's report recommended refusal of appropriations "to unauthorized river and harbor and flood control projects, commenced with emergency relief funds." It added:

"Upon the promise that it is the evident intention of the administration to finance all river and harbor projects in the future out of direct appropriations, the committee on Appropriations has taken the stand that, if it is to resume appropriate jurisdiction for such class of work, the appropriations must be confined to projects which have run the usual gauntlet of scrutiny by the corps of engineers, the Legislative Committee having jurisdiction of such matter and the legislative bodies themselves.

"It is understood that the Sardis and the Bluestone reservoir projects have been favorably recommended to Congress by the War Department, but have not been authorized, but none of the other three projects have been favorably acted upon by the corps of engineers."

AIR LINES LACK
SAFETY AIDS, SAYS
SENATE WITNESSTWA Flight Engineer Tells of Equipment That Is Needed at Landing Fields and on Airways.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—Lack of safety aids on the nation's airways is responsible for the hazardous flying conditions that exist today, a Senate sub-committee investigating air safety was told by a half dozen witnesses this morning.

Appearing at the opening of the committee's investigation, brought about by the death of Senator Bronson Cutting of New Mexico and four others in an airplane crash in May, 1935, at Macon, Mo., representatives of major air lines were agreed that insufficient flying aids resulted in needless dangers.

Senator Hiram Johnson (Rep., California, class friend of Cutting, is largely responsible for the present investigation. He took an active part in questioning witnesses today. But besides investigating the Cutting disaster and other recent major crashes, the committee announced that it would go into the entire matter of air safety.

Tomlinson's Testimony.

The principal witness today was "Tommy" Tomlinson, former navy flyer and now flight engineer, for Transcontinental Western Air. It was a TWA line plane that crashed at Macon, resulting in Cutting's death. Tomlinson confirmed his testimony, however, to the general need for more safety aids. Pressed by Johnson, he said that not only was there lack of safety equipment at landing fields and on the airways, but that personnel manning this equipment was sometimes inferior.

Tomlinson particularly stressed the need for additional radio beams as well as for duplicate equipment that would make it possible to project a beam when one device failed. Pilots are flying by radio direction beams more than ever before, Tomlinson said.

"The radio beams do fail," Tomlinson said, "and sometimes they are out for a considerable time. The beam went out at St. Louis and it was out for nearly 24 hours. Again, when I had flown a plane out of Kansas City, I discovered that the beam at Columbia, Mo., was out.

When the St. Louis beam went out it was necessary to cancel flights out of Columbus, O., because we could not clear planes through St. Louis."

Opinion on Responsibility.

This situation entailed serious possibilities, Tomlinson said under questioning from Johnson. Flyers attempting to land blind under bad weather conditions would have encountered great difficulty, he said. The Department of Commerce, in which is the Bureau of Air Navigation, was responsible, Tomlinson said in answer to Johnson's questions.

These were failures which he had personally experienced, Tomlinson said, but he had also had reports of other similar failures, he added. Weather reports should be more accurate, he told the committee.

"An effort should be made," he said, "to build up a high personnel of weather observers. It should not be necessary to rely upon some former or some trapper for weather reports."

"Well, is that done?" Johnson interrupted.

"Yes, I believe it is, Senator. And the important thing is that all the reports coming from various sources are co-ordinated in a general report furnished to the pilot for his aid. Each report is like the link of a chain and the chain is no stronger than its weakest link."

About the Upper Air.

He also stressed the need for more scientific observation of weather conditions in the upper air, pointing out that commercial companies were making experiments which it was hoped would lead to regular commercial flights at a height of 20,000 to 30,000 feet in planes with re-enforced cabins. Flights at this level, he said, would

'KID CANN' TAKES STAND, DENIES LIGGETT MURDER

Testifies He Was in Minneapolis Barber Shop at Time Machine Gunner Shot Editor.

BOOTLEGGING FOR FIVE OR SIX YEARS

Defendant, Questioned by Own Counsel, Details Three Convictions Under Liquor Laws.

By the Associated Press. MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Feb. 10.—Isadore (Kid Cann) Blumenfeld, former bootlegger, of killing Walter Liggett, newspaper publisher, took the stand in his own defense before a packed court room today.

As in statements made previously to police, the defendant denied he had any part in the murder and he offered an alibi.

Dressed in a greenish gray business suit, white shirt and dark tie, he testified preliminarily to his alibi, that he was in a downtown barber shop at 5:41 p. m., last Dec. 9, when Liggett was killed by a machine-gunner in an alley near his home, that he was born in Rumania, and was brought to this country by his parents when he was one year old. At 18 he began boxing as an amateur under the name of "Kid Cann." His schooling ended after "about the fifth grade."

"You have been convicted of prohibition law violations," asked Thomas McMeekin, his counsel. "I have."

"How many times?" "Three times. In 1929 I paid a fine of $250. In 1931 I paid a $1500 fine and in 1934 I was sentenced to one year in the city workhouse."

He said he had bootlegged for "five or six years," had been married eight years, and gave as his full name, "Isadore Harry Blumenfeld," although the surname is commonly spelled Blumenfeld.

Counsel then led him up to his movements on the afternoon of the murder.

CHICAGO CONTRACTOR FINED IN PWA 'KICK-BACK' SUIT

J. C. d'Ambrosio Pleads Nolo Contendere to Charge of Collecting Part of Workers' Pay.

DANVILLE, Ill., Feb. 10.—James C. d'Ambrosio, partner in the John Corlett Construction Co. of Chicago, has been fined $397 by Federal Judge Walter C. Lindley on his plea of nolo contendere to an indictment charging d'Ambrosio with violating the "kick-back" clause of Federal PWA regulations. The fine was imposed last Wednesday.

d'Ambrosio was charged with having collected $750 a month for four months from eight men employed in the construction of the Manteno State Hospital in Kankakee County, Ill., an improvement constructed with $400,000 PWA funds. The "kick-back" clause in PWA regulations forbids employers from evading payment of prevailing wages, by paying the prevailing wages and then taking back part of the pay.

The indictment was voted against d'Ambrosio by a Federal grand jury at East St. Louis, last Nov. 5.

ARMY TRANSPORT CAPTAIN MISSING FROM SHIP AT SEA

Official Inquiry Into Disappearance Begun When Republic Docks at San Francisco.

By the Associated Press. SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 10.—Capt. E. E. McLellan of the army transport Republic was reported missing when the ship docked here today.

Army officials had been informed by wireless of the officer's disappearance, began an inquiry. Col. Harry H. Pritchett of the Fort Mason Embarkation Dock was said to have started an investigation aboard the transport.

Unverified reports said Capt. McLellan appeared at 5 a. m. in pajamas when the ship was off the Farallone Islands and left instructions that he be called when the Republic reached the lightship, seven miles offshore. When a man went to call Capt. McLellan, the reports said, the officer was not in his cabin.

ROOSEVELT SIGNS REPEAL OF 3 CROP CONTROL ACTS

Bankhead Cotton, Kerr-Smith Tobacco and Warren Potato Regulations Are Dead.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—President Roosevelt signed today the repealing the Bankhead Cotton Act, the Kerr-Smith Tobacco Act and the Warren Potato control law.

He recommended the repeal of the three compulsory crop control acts just a week ago with the explanation that they were "auxiliary" measures to the Agricultural Adjustment Act which the Supreme Court declared unconstitutional.

He signed the one-page, speedily enacted repealer without ceremony in his office.

NEWSPAPER TAX LAW OF LOUISIANA IS THROWN OUT

the single exception of the Louisiana statute, so far as we can discover, no state during the 150 years of our national existence has undertaken to impose a tax like that now in question.

Form of Tax Significant. "The form in which the tax is imposed is in itself sufficient. It is not measured or limited by the volume of advertisement. It is measured alone by the extent of the circulation of the publication in which the advertisements are carried, with the plain purpose of penalizing the publishers and curtailing the circulation of a selected group of newspapers."

"Having reached the conclusion that the act imposing the tax in question is unconstitutional under the due process of law clause because it abridges the freedom of the press, we deem it unnecessary to consider the further ground assigned that it also constitutes a denial of the equal protection of the laws."

Further discussing the contention of the newspapers that the tax abridged the freedom of the press, the court said this point "presents a question of the utmost gravity and importance; for, if well made, it goes to the heart of the natural rights of the members of an organized society, united for their common good, to impart and acquire information about their common interest."

Small Game Perishing FROM COLD AND HUNGER Thousands Reported Dying in Ozark Mountains Sportsmen Raising Money to Buy Feed.

By the Associated Press. ST. PAUL, Minn., Feb. 10.—Thousands of game birds have perished in Minnesota. Sportsmen's organizations are raising funds to buy food.

Big game also is feeling the pinch of hunger. Deer and elk have ventured to the outskirts of cities in the Rocky Mountain region. Farmers have complained that elk have raided their haystacks.

Two Escape When Car Goes THROUGH LAKE OF OZARKS ICE Auto Sinks in 35 Feet of Water; They Break Glass and Swim to Surface.

By the Associated Press. CAMDENTON, Mo., Feb. 10.—Raymond Ayres and Melvin McCoy, both of Camdenton, escaped death yesterday when the motor car they were driving on the frozen surface of the Lake of the Ozarks struck an obstruction, bounced in the air, cracked through the ice and sank in 35 feet of water. They escaped from the car by breaking the glass and swimming to the surface. McCoy was exhausted but Ayres managed to reach a camp near Damsel and summon help.

Today both men were reported suffering from exhaustion and frozen hands and faces. Each is about 35.

They had motored about 12 miles on the ice before the accident occurred. The lake has been frozen over for about 10 days.

Missing Flyer's Plane Sighted. By the Associated Press. LOS ANGELES, Feb. 10.—Wreckage of the Army pursuit plane of Lieut. John T. Helms, Army aviator missing a month, was found today in the San Bernardino mountains, Capt. George Rice, pilot of a Transcontinental transport, reported. Helms was the fiancé of Toby Wing, movie actress. He disappeared on a flight from San Francisco to March Field. Rice identified the Army ship after flying over it twice.

MUNITION INQUIRY TURNS TO BACKERS OF NAVY LEAGUE

Shows Steel and Ship Men Contributed to Organization That Advocates Bigger Fleets.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—Testimony that steel manufacturers, shipbuilders and steamship operators had contributed to the support of the Navy League, organized to promote a big navy, was presented today before the Senate Munitions Committee.

With Nelson Mc... president of the league, as a witness, the committee presented lists of life members and periodic supporters including Charles M. Schwab of the Bethlehem Steel Co. and Eugene G. Grace, president of Bethlehem Steel; John J. Raskob, former Democratic National Chairman and "a miscellaneous group of ship owners."

The "miscellaneous group" included Alfred I. du Pont, A. Felix du Pont, and Miss Evelina du Pont. Many denied having ever talked to any of these members.

"I do not want to cast aspersions on any member of the Navy League regarding their patriotic fervor," Chairman Nye (Rep.), North Dakota said, "but I must ask whether there are any members such as would have a selfish or personal interest in a big navy."

"No," snapped Macy, "and there never has been."

He agreed that the league had accepted contributions from shipbuilders and ship owners, but that it was not a "big navy" league, but a "big fleet" league.

Immediately the committee introduced a bundle of letters written by league officials to ship operators during the Senate investigation in ocean mail subsidies two years ago.

"We were trying to get them in," said Macy, referring to the ship operators, "because we feel we are fighting their fight in building up the merchant marine. We were trying to get their contributions."

844 White Soldiers Dead on Italian Side in East Africa.

By the Associated Press. ROME, Feb. 10.—Italian newspapers today published the Italian army's complete casualty list from Jan. 1, 1935, to Jan. 31, 1936, showing that 844 Italian soldiers and militiamen had been killed in East Africa or had died of wounds or illness.

The figures were for white troops only and did not include losses suffered by native troops fighting in the Italian forces.

Of the number listed, 427 were killed in action, 396 died of accidents and illness, four died as the result of wounds and 17 were reported missing.

During January, 1936, there were 24 officers, 24 noncommissioned officers, 30 regular army soldiers and 300 Italian militiamen killed on the Italian front.

Italian newspapers carried reports that seven Italian airplanes had been bombed Dessey for an hour yesterday, killing hundreds of Ethiopians, while Emperor Haile Selassie personally conducted the defense of the city.

The Italian press version said that bombs fell in the vicinity of the Emperor's palace, destroyed parts of the military encampment and set the woods surrounding Dessey on fire. Furthermore, it was reported, two Ethiopian airplanes were destroyed.

Asks Congress for WPA 'Stage Money' for Army

General Hagood Says $150,000,000 Is Needed to Get Men in Uniform Under Shelter.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—Congress was advised today by Major-General Johnson Hagood to take advantage of "a lot of easy money floating around"—including "stage money from the WPA"—and use it to improve living conditions at army posts.

The commander of the Eighth Corps Area and the Third Field Army told the House Appropriations Subcommittee for the army bill during hearings made public today what he thought of some of the New Deal relief spending. He suggested that this Congress turn $150,000,000 over to the War Department "with instructions to get the army under shelter."

"At the present time," Hagood said, "there is a vast flow of silver—I won't say gold—spreading out over the country like mud. It will soon dry up without anything permanent to show for it. I shall not be accused of profanity when I say 'For God's sake, put some of it into stone and steel.' I am not asking you to build pyramids. I am asking you to put up useful buildings that will be occupied by your men in uniform for a hundred years to come."

Uncle Sam's Money Pockets. The Major-General said he was "not familiar with the various pockets in which Uncle Sam keeps his money, but that he understood there is budget money, which is very hard to get; there is PWA money, which is not so hard to get; and then there is a vast quantity of WPA money which is very easy to get for trifling projects, but almost impossible to get for anything worthwhile."

He said he called WPA funds "stage money" because "you can pass it around but you cannot get anything out of it in the end."

"It is harder for me to get 5 cents to buy a lead pencil than to get a thousand dollars to teach hordes of CCC boys," Hagood told the committee. "I do not like the Government standard lead pencils and I cannot get by the Comptroller with the kind of pencils that I like. But CCC boys are exempted from the Comptroller's decisions. They do not have to come up to Government specifications. One man can be taught to collect postage stamps while another man can be encouraged to take an interest in butterflies."

"Under the WPA I can get $200 to build a gravel walk to the garden house, but I cannot get $10 to repair a 'busted' steam pipe."

The officer declared that, since returning from the World War, he had seen families of soldiers and civilian employees in the army "living under conditions worse than anything I saw among the Belgian refugees."

He cited cases of 16 families with only one bathroom among them and "not even a suitable partition for privacy between the occupants of the different sides."

"Money Floating Around." Hagood said he was not one of those who believed America was in any immediate danger of war from without, but did think it was "in more danger of an inside war than at any time during my 43 years of service."

Saying that sooner or later the Government would have to "take the army and its supplies out of wartime shacks and put it into permanent buildings" or "you have got to abolish the army," he added:

"I am suggesting that you do it now when there is a lot of easy money floating around, and not to wait until you are skinning the cat to the bone in order to make up for past extravagance. I got $45,000,000 last year for the CCC, and I got a lot of this stage money from the WPA."

"Now, the CCC is a fine thing—the best thing perhaps in the whole relief program. But the $45,000,000 I spent on it last year will all be gone away next year. Give me $38,000,000 for army housing and my great-grandchildren will show it to your great-grandchildren 50 years from now."

COAL COMMISSION WARNING AGAINST PRICE INCREASES Threatens to Fix Charges if Producers Take Advantage of Consumers Because of Cold Spell.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—Rising coal prices as a result of recent prolonged cold weather drew a warning today from the Bituminous Coal Commission to fix maximum prices for the fuel, if necessary to protect consumers.

Chairman Charles F. Hosford Jr. reminded a meeting of coal producers the commission has such power and would use it promptly if conditions warranted.

"If producers or distributors attempt to take an unfair advantage of these conditions, the commission will have to step in and regulate them," he said.

RADIO WORKERS REJECT CRAFT UNION CONTROL

Stick by Industrial Plan of Organization Although Denied A. F. L. Charter.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—Declaring themselves victims of the industrial union-craft union controversy in the American Federation of Labor, delegates to a radio factory workers' convention have lined up with the industrial unionists.

Although denied a national industrial charter by the Federation of Executive Council, delegates to the National Radio and Allied Trades convention, voted last night to organize a new national union and to resubmit their application for a Federation charter. They say they represent 30,000 workers.

Previously, the radio workers had rejected almost unanimously a proposal by the A. F. of L. executive council to transfer them to the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, a craft union of the Federation. They assailed the proposal as "wholly undemocratic" and contrary to the Federation's constitution.

James B. Carey of Philadelphia, president of the radio workers' union, said that members of his organization were victims of the fight within the Federation over the two types of unionism.

"If it weren't for the fact that this issue is being so hotly disputed," Carey said, "our application for a national charter would have been granted."

JARRETT BOY, 16, GETS 30 YEARS IN HIGGINS MURDER

Sentence to Be Fixed This Week for Ronald E. Rambo, Pal in Crime Who Pleaded Guilty.

JURY AGREED AT ONCE ON CONVICTION

Out Four Hours Deciding Length of Term — Defendant's Parents Lack Funds to Seek Appeal.

James Paul Jarrett, 16-year-old high-school student, was convicted of the murder of Deputy Treasurer John C. Higgins of Madison County in a verdict returned yesterday morning before Circuit Judge D. H. Mudge at Edwardsville. Punishment was fixed at 30 years in prison.

His former schoolmate and friend, Ronald Everett Rambo, also 16, the actual murderer of Higgins, was sentenced this week, after a hearing before Judge Mudge on the punishment to be inflicted. Rambo, who testified against Jarrett in his trial last week, admitted he slugged Higgins' 7-year-old daughter, Marjorie, with a revolver and shot her father in the heart, after he and Jarrett had broken into the Higgins home to loot.

Only 40 persons were in court when the jury returned its verdict, in contrast to the capacity crowds which had attended other sessions of the trial, beginning last Wednesday. The jury had arrived at a decision at 11:05 o'clock Saturday night, after four hours and 20 minutes' deliberation. By that time, however, Judge Mudge had retired to his home and the jury was kept up with instructions to return its verdict yesterday morning.

Young Defendant Weeps

The youthful defendant's father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Hubert W. Jarrett, were by his side when the verdict was handed to the court. As the courtroom clerk read it, Mrs. Jarrett put an arm around her son and patted his shoulder. At first young Jarrett showed no emotion, but a few moments later his eyes grew misty, and he dabbed at them with a handkerchief. Before leaving court, he wept aloud as he talked to other relatives, but quickly recovered his composure.

His lawyers had notified the court they were unable to be present for the return of the verdict, and it was State's Attorney M. L. Myers who suggested that the Court adjourn the jury. After the polling was completed the jury was discharged and Jarrett was taken back to the Madison County Jail, where he has been held since Nov. 26, the day of the Higgins murder.

A member of the jury told a post-Dispatch reporter that the panel's first ballot was unanimously for Jarrett was guilty and the remainder of the time in deliberation was spent in arriving at the degree of punishment. The first ballot on punishment, he said, ranged from 14 years to life, but more jurors were for 30 years than any other term.

To Be Sent to Chester First

Under Illinois practice, Jarrett will be sent to Chester penitentiary and the State Prison Board will decide later in what prison he will serve his sentence. The usual practice is to send young offenders to an industrial school or reformatory, at least for the first few years of their terms.

The elder Jarrett expressed the hope that he might be able to get financial assistance to prosecute an appeal for his son, although lawyers said no money is available from Illinois State funds for such purpose. His son's lawyers were pointed by the Court to defend him.

State's evidence against Jarrett consisted principally of the testimony of Rambo involving him in the burglary, and of two confessions to the same effect signed by Jarrett in the first 40 hours in which he was in custody. For the defense, Jarrett repudiated the confessions as exacted from him by threats, and declared he was at home in bed at the time of the murder. His mother and father testified that he was home at the time.

In his instructions, Judge Mudge told the jury that a participant in a burglary in which a man was killed was equally guilty of killing with his accomplice, the actual killer.

ONE DRIVER'S LICENSE REVOKED; 3 SUSPENDED

C. E. Glassen Loses Permit for Year; Pleads Guilty of Drunken Driving.

One driver's license was revoked for a year and three were suspended by Police Judge Simpson today. Charles E. Glassen, chemical engineer, 3402 Magnolia avenue, lost his license for a year when he pleaded guilty of driving while intoxicated Nov. 25. Police officers in a squad car noticed his automobile swerving from one side to the other on Manchester avenue near Knox avenue.

James C. Bradley, a painter, 5426 St. Louis avenue, lost his license for six months for violating an electric signal at Kingshighway and Manchester avenue Jan. 13. Police officers testified he made a U-turn at the intersection. He will appeal. The license of Calvin Davis, a presser, 1918 Arsenal street, was suspended for eight months when he was convicted of two careless driving charges, destruction of city property, violation of an electric signal and driving without a city license. The arrests grew out of an accident Jan. 2, in which his machine hit a taxicab and a police patrol box.

Joseph Brandel, shoe worker, 3417 Lemay avenue, lost his license for 90 days when convicted of careless driving. His truck hit a service car Jan. 25 on Broadway and Shenandoah avenue.

ST. LOUIS COAL DEALERS SAY SUPPLY IS DWINDLING

One of Those Dependent on Fuel Delivered by Truck Asks Miners to Work Overtime.

St. Louis coal dealers dependent on coal hauled by trucks from nearby Illinois mines were concerned today about a fuel shortage because of the continued cold weather. One of them in a telegram to William Keck, president of the Progressive Miners, urged that the miners work double shifts or overtime, and said that some trucks which had waited all night at the mines were returning empty to St. Louis.

For the last two weeks, because of the great demand for coal, the miners have worked six days, waiving the five-day week specified in their contracts. Other dealers, whose business is chiefly in coal hauled by railroads from Southern Illinois and other fields, agreed that there was a scant supply of coal, requiring delivery in small lots so that there would be enough to go around. These dealers expressed the opinion that sufficient fuel could be obtained to meet the need.

There are 196 men in the camp, which formerly was a CCC camp. O'Dell was transferred to the camp last week from Liberty camp at Kansas City. King said there are no other cases apparent in the camp.

HEARING BEGUN ON DISBARMENT OF TWO LAWYERS

M. J. Hannigan Accused With O. M. Gallant, Produces Records on Prosecutor's Request.

Hearing of the State Bar Committee's disbarment suit against Marion J. Hannigan and Otis M. Gallant began today in the St. Louis Court of Appeals assembly room, before Derwood E. Williams of Troy, as Special Commissioner for the Court of Appeals. The two lawyers are charged with unethical practices, in soliciting damage suits against corporations, and splitting fees with non-lawyers acting as "runners."

Hannigan was present, and stated that Gallant was ill. Montague Lyon appeared as counsel for the two lawyers. The Bar Committee was represented by Frank Hollingsworth of Mexico and Seward McKittrick of St. Louis.

A motion of the Bar Committee, that hearings be held at Hannibal and at Independence, was overruled by the court before the hearing began. The reason given for the motion was that witnesses lived at and near the places named.

The first hour of the hearing was taken up with a discussion of a subpoena duces tecum, issued and served, requiring the defendants to produce partnership books, check records and income-tax returns for the period covered by the charges, 1932 to 1935.

Hannigan and Lyon argued that the procedure followed had been improper, and that a court order for production of the records would have been the proper method. Hollingsworth defended the procedure followed. Commissioner Williams said that, in view of the objection, Hollingsworth might draw up a petition for an order on the defendants to produce the records named in the subpoenas. The hearing was then adjourned, with the understanding that Hollingsworth would record his motion after the noon recess.

When the afternoon session began, Hollingsworth presented his motion for production of the records, which Commissioner Williams upheld, and thereupon Hannigan produced all the records asked for with the exception of income tax returns for 1933 to 1935 inclusive, which he said he had been unable to find.

Hannigan was then called as the first witness for the Bar Committee. In response to questions by Hollingsworth, he stated that he was 32 years old, licensed to practice law in April, 1925, and had attended St. Louis University Law School for three years, but had never been graduated. His association with Gallant, he said, began in 1933 when the firm of Gallant, Hannigan & Summers was formed.

Hannigan was asked whether Summers was not H. Summers, recently disbarred. He replied that it was, but that disbarment proceedings against Summers were not started until after Summers had severed his connection with the firm. Hannigan testified that he practiced law alone until April 1, 1933, when he formed the partnership with Gallant, the partnership continuing until June, 1934. After that date, he said, Gallant moved to Illinois. Employees of the office during the partnership, Hannigan said, were Sidney Gallant, a brother of Otis, Robert Guttman, and Lawrence Jones, none of them lawyers.

Charges by Bar Committee.

In the State Bar Committee's suit, Hannigan and Hannigan were charged in three counts with conspiring to practice law unethically in the solicitation of personal injury damage suits against corporations. The first count alleged that they became common barrators in incitement of litigation, chiefly in the Tenth Judicial Circuit, which comprises Marion, Monroe and Ralls counties. It was alleged that they agreed to pay costs of prosecuting clients' claims, and costs of medical examinations, and that they advanced money and benefits to clients.

Of 57 persons named in the petition as having made claims against corporations through the two lawyers, 28 were said to have been employed by the Missouri Portland Cement Co. and 11 by the Universal Atlas Cement Co. The second count charged the two lawyers with paying agents and runners to solicit claims, and named 12 such alleged agents, including Sidney Gallant, brother of Otis Gallant. The third count charged them with unlawful and unethical division of fees with the 12 alleged agents previously named, and with other persons not licensed to practice law.

GEORGE W. STRODTMAN HURT WHEN RUN DOWN BY TAXICAB

Real Estate Man, Former Sheriff Struck by Machine at Grand and Laclede.

George W. Strodtman, president of Strodtman & Strodtman Real Estate Co. and former Sheriff of St. Louis, suffered fractures of the left wrist, right thumb and bruises on the head, with possible concussion, when struck by a taxicab last night at Grand boulevard and Laclede avenue.

Hugo Sonnenschein, 1855 Russell boulevard, said Strodtman apparently intended to board a north-bound Grand car and stepped in front of his cab as he drove north. Strodtman, who is 67 years old and resides at 4407 Strodtman place, received emergency treatment at City Hospital and then was removed to Christian Hospital. Long active in politics, he served two terms as Sheriff of St. Louis, one by appointment. He was a former chairman of the Republican City Committee and was the unsuccessful Republican candidate for Congress from the Thirteenth District in 1934.

MAN MAKES NOLO CONTENDERE PLEA TO CHARGE OF PERJURY

John Stith, Negro, Accused After Testifying in Damage Suit Against Kresge Co.

John Stith, a Negro, of 4102 Cook avenue, pleaded nolo contendere to a charge of perjury before Federal Judge Davis today. At the request of his counsel disposition of his case was deferred to March 16. Stith was indicted in May, 1935, as a result of testimony he gave in the suit of Herman Kempf against the S. S. Kresge Co. for $10,000 damages for the death of his wife following a fall in a Kresge store. Stith testified that he was working as a porter in the store at the time and that he noticed some soup spilled in front of the lunch counter.

The Kresge Co. won the suit. It did not deny that Mrs. Kempf fell in the store but brought out evidence that Stith was no longer working there at the time and that soup was not served at that lunch counter. It contended that Mrs. Kempf was suffering from a disease which subjected her to falls.

elevator shaft and the fire spread rapidly. Third Alarm Sent. A third alarm was sounded, and Chief Cornoyer returned to the scene. He called firemen out of the building and they devoted themselves to pouring streams of water into it from the street.

When the fire broke through the roof, the flames leaped high in the air. Despite the hour and the bitter cold, several hundred persons gathered to observe the spectacle. Service on the Manchester street car line was interrupted until 3:10 o'clock this afternoon. Cars bound for the Maplewood loop were turned back at the old car sheds opposite the Seullin Steel plant and shuttle bus service was established between that point and the Maplewood loop. Through cars, operating to Webster and Kirkwood, used the routes of the City Limits and Forest Park lines between Maplewood and Vandeventer and Chouteau avenues.

Automobile traffic was diverted to other streets between Bellevue and McCausland avenues. Ice had formed in Manchester avenue east of the burned building as far as McCausland avenue. George B. MUENCHES GET CHANGE OF VENUE TO KAHOKA, MO.

Charge of Conspiracy to Violate Law in Baby Hoax Is Sent to Clark County for Trial.

A change of venue to Kahoka, Clark County, in Northern Missouri, was granted today to Mrs. Nellie Tipton Muench and her three co-defendants on the charge of conspiracy to violate the laws of Missouri, in connection with the Muench baby hoax.

The case, it was stated, will be placed on the Clark County Circuit Court docket April 6, and will then be set for trial. Judge Walter A. Higbee is Judge of the Thirty-seventh Circuit, which includes Clark County.

The order granting the change of venue was entered by Dewey S. Godfrey, Provisional Judge of the Court of Criminal Correction, without the hearing of any evidence on the change of venue application.

Mrs. Muench did not appear in court, and her husband and co-defendant, Dr. Ludwig O. Muench, said she was sick. The other defendants, Mrs. Helen Berroyer and Wilfred Jones, attorney and baby broker, were present. Harry Soffer, who was counsel for Mrs. Berroyer when the habeas corpus suit of Anna Ware for recovery of her infant was before the St. Louis Court of Appeals in October, was the only lawyer to appear for the defense today.

The legal point which was to come before Provisional Judge Godfrey today was whether leave should be granted to the defense to file a change of venue plea. At the outset of the hearing, Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Mathews stated that the prosecution would concede this point. "The Prosecuting Attorney's office," he said, "is of the opinion that they have the right to file this application."

Acting Judge Godfrey then said: "The court, of its own motion, will grant these defendants a change of venue. The court is convinced that they are entitled to it. They might bring in 5, 10 or 20 witnesses to testify that there was prejudice, and the State might bring an equal number of say there was no prejudice."

dice; but the Court thinks there is some prejudice. "We want the defendants to have a fair trial, and hence, to avoid wasting time, the Court will transfer this case to Clark County."

The defendants were notified to appear in court at 10 a. m. tomorrow, to furnish new bonds in the sum of $200 each, replacing their present bonds.

Before this decision was reached, Attorney Soffer called the acting Judge's opinion to a citation from an appellate court decision, to the effect that a juvenile court had no jurisdiction over an illegitimate child. He held that this would affect the validity of the pending charge against the four defendants.

Mathews said the prosecution was aware of this decision, and did not regard it as affecting the present case. He said the issue in the case cited by Soffer was one as to the support of an infant.

Mrs. Muench and her co-defendants are charged, in an information issued by Prosecuting Attorney Finnegan, with having conspired to violate the law by taking charge first of the illegitimate infant son of Estelle Oberg, and later of Anna Ware's baby, without obtaining approval of the Juvenile Court.

In the habeas corpus hearing, the Court of Appeals restored Anna Ware's baby to her, after Dr. and Mrs. Muench had held it since

BART DAVIT SENTENCED TO LIFE FOR MURDER

Files Notice of Appeal After Being Denied New Trial in Holdup Killing.

Formal sentence of life imprisonment was pronounced on Bart Davit by Circuit Judge McElhinney at Clayton today, after the Court had overruled his motion for a new trial for the murder of Paul Flueck, Maplewood grocer, killed in a holdup three years ago.

Davit, pallid from long confinement in the St. Louis County jail, was in court and stood at his chair without outward show of emotion as the Court entered sentence. He has been held in jail since March, 1934, when he was arrested on a charge of kidnapping Dr. Isaac D. Kelley for ransom. He has not yet been tried on that charge.

After entry of sentence, Davit's lawyer filed notice of an appeal to the Missouri Supreme Court. Pending a decision on the appeal, he will be held in jail at Clayton. He was convicted of the Flueck murder on Nov. 26.

shortly after its birth Aug. 17, representing it as their own. The Court held that Mrs. Muench's claim of motherhood was "a sham and hollow pretense."

Kahoka, to which the case is to be taken, is near the Iowa border, and is 135 miles from St. Louis by rail. Judge Higbee, who holds court there, was Republican nominee in 1934 for Judge of the State Supreme Court, Division 1. He lives at Lancaster.

Mrs. Muench last June sought and obtained a change of venue from St. Louis County, in her trial on the charge of kidnapping for ransom in the Dr. Kelley case. She alleged prejudice in St. Louis City and County and in St. Charles, Franklin, Washington, Warren and Gasconade Counties. The same counties were named in the recent application as the scene of prejudice against the defense in the present case, because of the "great notoriety and front-page publicity" given to the habeas corpus case in the St. Louis papers. The defense did not allege such prejudice in Jefferson County, which is near the southern city limits, and where St. Louis newspapers have a larger circulation, in proportion to population, than in St. Charles, Franklin, Warren, Washington or Gasconade County.

The change of venue granted to Mrs. Muench in the kidnapping case was to Mexico, Audrain County, where she was acquitted.

FESS STRESSES PARTY LOYALTY IN REPLY TO BORAH

Says G. O. P. Nominee Must Have Supported More Republican Than Democratic Measures.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—The publican presidential nominee must hold a record of having supported "more Republican measures than Democratic measures," said former Senator Fess of Ohio yesterday in reply to a demand by Senator Borah to know who Fess favored as a candidate.

Fess' statement coincided with increasing indications that, with Borah entering the lists in Ohio, the regular Republican organization might drop its plan for a favorite son or unpledged delegation to the national convention in Cleveland. In a statement yesterday, Borah hit at Fess, attacked the favorite son plan as a deception, and challenged his opponents to come into the open in Ohio and elsewhere.

Borah demanded to know whether Fess favored "The Old Deal" and remarked that he understood the Ohioan was for Herbert Hoover. Borah himself had been irritated by Fess' previous contention that he had shown New Deal leanings.

Fess, who was chairman of the Republican National Committee during part of the Hoover administration, said, "The statement that I am for Mr. Hoover is not true." He added, however, that he could be for the former President "without having to make an apology." After proposing a conservative platform on which he said his candidate must stand, Fess said, "If Senator Borah would stand for these things, I would be the happiest man in the country to support him because of my personal admiration of him."

"I am for the man who stands on sound Republican principles as against the spurious policies and the New Deal philosophy of the administration. There are numerous such men in the country. The convention will have no trouble finding such a standard bearer."

Among the things Fess listed as necessary for his choice for President were the open door of opportunity for industry as against planned economy, private industry as against Government competition in all industry, sound money as against managed currency, permission for a citizen to live his own life as against bureaucratic dictation from Washington and a protective tariff for the farmer.

Borah, reached at his home here, declined to comment upon the Fess statement. He would make no statement concerning reports that he planned to go into Illinois as well as Ohio and the Northwest.

The Borah-Fess interchange served to turn even greater attention upon the plans of the regular Republican organization in Ohio. Thus far, the Idaho Senator is the only Republican candidate to announce formally that he would file there.

ROCKET MAIL PLANE FLIGHT FIZZES OUT

Two Attempts to Shoot Glider Across Greenwood Lake, N. Y., End in Failure.

By the Associated Press.

GREENWOOD LAKE, N. Y., Feb. 10.—Two attempts to send a 25-foot duralumin glider two and a half miles across Greenwood Lake to Hewitt, N. J., failed yesterday, but sponsors of the experiment said they would try again next Sunday.

On the first attempt, flames shot from the tail of the machine with a roar and the glider quivered on its catapult. In 10 seconds the flames had died out and the craft was still in its original position.

Forty-five minutes later the fuses were lit again and again fire shot from the tail. The catapult was released, and the glider shot upward 300 feet, then plunged into the snow. It was not damaged.

Frido Kessler, New York stamp collector and sponsor of the experiment, said the frozen condition of the catapult cable prevented release of the plane until the power of the rocket had been exhausted.

About 500 spectators lined the shores of the frozen lake. The rocket ship was mounted on a catapult about 100 yards offshore on the ice. On board were 6127 pieces of mail, contributed by stamp collectors.

Wearing an asbestos suit and helmet, Willy Ley of Berlin, vice-president of the German Rocket Society, applied the torch on each of the attempts. Manning the catapult release cable was Nathan Carver of New York, an engineer and associate of Kessler. Carver, attired in a sheepskin coat, sprawled on the ice, ready to release the catapult when the rocket developed the necessary power.

Kessler said he had been preparing three years for the tests. He said the experiment was designed to demonstrate the possibilities of rocket planes controlled by radio.

SENATOR LEWIS INTRODUCES PROPOSED AMENDMENT

Would Change 14th Alteration of Constitution so as to Bar Corporations.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—Senator Lewis (Dem.), Illinois, introduced today a proposed constitutional amendment to provide that safeguards of the fourteenth amendment should apply to natural persons only and not to corporations. He said it was introduced at the request of Prof. Edward T. Lee of the John Marshall Law School, Chicago.

The fourteen amendment prohibits the abridgment of life, liberty or property "without due process of law."

The proposed amendment states that while intended originally to apply to none but natural persons a series of "judicial decisions had extended the amendment's guarantees to 'fictitious and artificial persons, resulting in grave consequences to the economic, social and political institutions."

GOVERNOR LIFTS MARTIAL LAW IN TWO INDIANA COUNTIES

Civil Rule Restored in Vigo and Sullivan After Emergency Strike Action.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Feb. 10.—Civil rule was restored to Vigo and Sullivan counties today, marking the first time since Oct. 9, 1933, that there has not been at least one county in Indiana under martial law.

Gov. McNutt announced the lifting of martial law in the two counties yesterday. The order was dated Saturday, but did not go into effect until last midnight. Only a small detail has been on duty for several months.

Sullivan County was placed under martial law on Oct. 9, 1933, as the result of violence in connection with labor trouble in the coal fields. The martial law order for Vigo County was issued last July 22, when a general strike followed a walkout of employees of the Columbia Enameling & Stamping Mill in Terre Haute.

Last week the Governor lifted martial law in Clark and Floyd counties. Troops were sent to those counties on Jan. 20, following fights during a strike at the shirt manufacturing plants of M. Fine & Sons in New Albany and Jeffersonville.

WAUKEGAN, Ill., Feb. 10.—Col. A. V. Smith, former Lake County State's Attorney, died of a heart attack yesterday in Victory Memorial Hospital. He was 59 years old.

His military service began in 1904 when he organized a battery of field artillery in the Illinois National Guard and became its captain. He saw service on the Mexican border and served as a Lieutenant-Colonel in the World War.

In 1922, as State's Attorney, Col. Smith prosecuted Gov. Len Small on charges of conspiracy to defraud the State of interest earned on State funds while Small was State Treasurer. Small won an acquittal.

'SHOCKING' SITUATION ON DEFAULTED BONDS

"Milking" of Funds From Mortgage Properties Reported by Legislators.

By the Associated Press.

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 10.—A legislative investigating committee reported last night a "shocking" situation in which defaulted mortgage properties have been "saddled with huge expenditures and charges" by bondholders' committee, trustees and reorganization companies.

The committee devoted much time to issues outstanding at the time S. W. Straus went into receivership, aggregating $313,438,543 and held by 80,000 owners.

"We found," the committee said, "that in many instances representations were made by the Straus committees that they would act without compensation, but immediately after the deposit of bonds they borrowed over $400,000 on them and retained $180,600 for themselves before any service was rendered to the bondholders."

"After the bondholders suffered a loss through the purchase of a bond or default of the mortgage, the protective committee stepped in, and the milking process began anew."

"Many lawyers of administration in connection with the default of the property began to function, each receiving a share of the diminishing fund. The committee received its fees, the committee's attorney received allowances, the trustee paid itself, the trustee paid its attorneys, the management companies received fees, and frequently attorneys for minority bondholders committees received allowances."

MOONEY ACCUSED OF TRYING TO ARRANGE ALIBI IN ADVANCE

State So Characterizes Labor Parades Before Preparedness Day Parade in 1916.

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 10.—Thomas J. Mooney was accused today of attempting to establish an alibi or even a defense several days before the 1916 Preparedness day parade was bombed. The accusation was made by Assistant Attorney-General William Cleary when the State opened its case in Mooney's habeas corpus hearing. Cleary questioned Mooney regarding resolutions passed by laborers' organizations protesting against the Preparedness day parade. Frank P. Walsh of Mooney's counsel objected.

"The very character of this resolution shows Mooney was trying to establish an alibi or even a defense even before the parade," said Cleary.

Mooney was not certain whether he had introduced the resolution before the Moulders' Union, and offered to obtain the union minutes as "the best evidence."

Mooney declared it was common knowledge in San Francisco that something was going to happen during the parade. He asserted labor organizations had warned members not to do anything or say anything that would reflect on labor.

PLEADS GUILTY, GETS 8 YEARS FOR POSTAL STATION ROBBERY

Joseph Deves, 29, Admits Participation in Holdup at Drug Store in 1930.

Joseph Deves, 29 years old, was sentenced to eight years in Leavenworth Penitentiary by Federal Judge Davis today on his plea of guilty of participation in the robbery of a post-office sub-station in a drug store at 6955 Gravois avenue, March 4, 1930.

Deves was arrested by Federal authorities on his release from Missouri State Penitentiary last November, after serving five and a half years of a 10-year term on two other robbery charges. United States Attorney Harry C. Blanton dismissed a charge of threatening a custodian of the mails with a deadly weapon, which carries a mandatory penalty of 25 years imprisonment, and recommended his plea on a lesser charge of attempted robbery.

In the holdup, at the drug store of Ambrose Bryan, three robbers shot Dr. Jesse P. Townsend, physician residing upstairs, and fled with $180, including $28 in postal funds. Deves was arrested six weeks later after a pistol fight with police at a Manchester avenue garage. His companions are serving 10-year terms for robbery at Joliet Penitentiary, Ill.

COMPOSER CHARLES CADMAN SEVERS OLYMPIC CONNECTIONS

Says America Should Stay Out of Games Because of Nazi "Persecution."

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—Charles Wakefield Cadman, the composer, in an open letter "to the press" from his home in San Diego, Cal., withdrew today from any connection with American participation in the Olympic games in Germany.

Cadman voiced his "personal conviction" that it is not "to America's advantage to participate in the Olympic games in Nazi Germany" because of the "attitude of Herr Hitler in regard to the persecution of racial and religious groups, and the suppression of civil liberties."

SHARING WEALTH NOT FEASIBLE, SAYS LIBERTY LEAGUE

Increased Production Offers Better Prospect for 'Lower Income Classes,' Statement Declares.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—Proposals for sharing the national wealth were called "not only impractical but utterly impossible" today by the American Liberty League.
Defining wealth as not money, but land, buildings, industry, railways, raw materials, manufactured goods and metals, the League said the most feasible method of dividing it equally among all the people would be for the Government to issue securities against all property, and then to take over its management.
Actual division of wealth might "give a city apartment dweller an unwelcome pig or sheep," the statement added, while the farmer might receive an equally unwelcome piece of urban property. Division also would destroy wealth, the League argued, because separate units of income-producing wealth "would have no value."
"A distribution of wealth would be a case of killing the goose that laid the golden egg," the League concluded.

"Political Medicine Men."
The League statement assailed those who made "misleading and even false statements with reference to the distribution of wealth and income" and those whose "advocacy of a redistribution of wealth is rooted in a demagogical purpose to inflame the mass of people against the richer classes."
"Quack schemes for a redistribution of wealth threaten a destruction of both wealth and income," the League said. "Problems bearing on wealth and income remain to be solved but economic ill will will not be cured by the remedies of political medicine men."

Analysis of Incomes.
The League summed up the present income situation as follows: "Net incomes below $5000 for 1934 accounted for 60 per cent of the total net income, although bearing less than 7 per cent of the total tax burden."
"Net incomes above $5000 represented only about 10 per cent of the estimated national income."
"Net incomes above $100,000 accounted for less than 4 per cent of total net income and less than 1 per cent of the estimated national income."

"Equal distribution of all net incomes above $5000 among all the people of the United States would give each less than $40."
"From 75 to 80 per cent of the total national income is in the form of wages and salaries as distinguished from returns on property."
Increased Production as Aid.
"Known facts relating to homes, farms, stocks, bonds, savings deposits and insurance policies testify to a wide distribution of the ownership of wealth."

"Forms of property constituting wealth cannot easily be divided. Its redistribution would mean a destruction of both wealth and income."
"If the entire present national wealth, which includes public and private property, were in money and could be distributed equally among the population, no individual would have as much as $2400."
"More and more production under the American system of free enterprise offers a much better prospect of an improved status for those in the lower income classes than any Utopian scheme for a redistribution."

WOUNDED PEKIN TAXICAB MAN KILLED BY BROTHER-IN-LAW

William J. Potts Says Clarence Rupp Attacked Him After Threatening to Shoot Wife.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
PEORIA, Ill., Feb. 10.—Clarence Rupp, 36 years old, owner of a taxicab company, who was wounded Wednesday night when a general strike was in progress at Pekin, was shot and killed in a struggle with his brother-in-law, William J. Potts, 23, at his home yesterday. Potts, a lawyer and son of William A. Potts, dean of Pekin's bar, said he fired in self-defense.

Rupp was discharged from the hospital Friday night. He engaged in an argument with his wife, and was alleged to have beaten her, causing her removal to the hospital. Potts remained with Rupp Saturday night. Rupp was drinking heavily, Potts declared. Sunday Rupp visited his wife's aunt, Mrs. Emma Purdie, and on returning home declared he was going to the hospital to shoot his wife, Potts told police.

"Oh, no, you're not," Potts declared he said to Rupp, who leaped at Potts and shouted, "You're not going to stop me."

In the scuffle, Potts took a .22-caliber revolver from the dining room table and shot Rupp four times. One bullet entered the left arm, another the chest and two the back. Potts told Sheriff Ralph Goar, to whom he surrendered after the shooting, that he had anticipated trouble and had carried the revolver from an upstairs bedroom to the dining room.

Rupp's 2-year-old daughter and Wilma Hohenstreider, housemaid, witnessed the shooting. The maid verified Potts' story that Rupp attacked him.

REPORT OF EPIDEMIC KILLING HUNDREDS IN AMAZON VILLAGE

Reports From Santa Rem, Brazil, Are Meager; Suggestive of Asiatic Cholera.

BELEM, Brazil, Feb. 9.—Health officials were en route today to the village of Santa Rem in Para Province, where a mysterious epidemic was said to have taken hundreds of lives. Jose Malcher, Governor of Para, ordered officials there with food and medical supplies on the basis of meager advices.

First reports, not confirmed, said that "hundreds" had died from the disease. Their symptoms were listed as high delirious fever, diarrhea and continual vomiting. One message said the cemetery at Santa Rem was filled to capacity as the fever claimed both humans and animals.
(Physicians at Rio de Janeiro surmised the disease might possibly be acute Asiatic cholera, whose victims usually die after one day's illness. Officials there were unable to account for the origin of the reported epidemic. Reports said the fast-dying population was being buried elsewhere because of the cemetery's being filled, and that 1000 cattle had died. Communications facilities to Santa Rem are meager and it was difficult to obtain details. Santa Rem is about halfway between Belem and Manaus on the Amazon River.)

The Power of Economy

Not so many years ago, an 80-horsepower engine was a big engine... heavy, cumbersome, costly to operate, expensive to maintain. But Ford has changed all that. The Ford V-8 Truck engine is so efficient that it develops more than 80 horsepower... yet, with all this power, it is light in weight, responsive, easy on gas and oil, economical to maintain. And today's 80-horsepower Ford V-8 Truck sells for a mere fraction of the price you would have paid for that same amount of power just a few years ago.

That explains why so many truck operators who have always needed powerful trucks are changing to Fords and discovering the Power of Economy. It also explains why owners of lower powered trucks are buying Fords and getting the power they have always needed, but thought they could not afford.

Ford V-8 Trucks have been PROVED BY THE PAST AND IMPROVED FOR THE FUTURE. Your Ford dealer invites you to make an "on-the-job" test of a 1936 Ford V-8 Truck... with your own loads... under your own operating conditions.

Chief Loch said her death was "an apparent suicide," the climax of a motoring trip. Taylor's automatic pistol was on the floor beside the body.
Taylor, 29, said he was taking a bath soon after they registered. He said he heard a shot and rushed out of the bathroom to hear Mrs. Riddle gasping: "Oh, Boyd, Boyd!" The young woman was dead when police and doctors arrived.
Taylor told officers he has been separated from his wife two years, and that Mrs. Riddle was estranged from her husband, Ralph L. Riddle, a law student in San Francisco.

TRAIN SERVICE TIED UP BY SNOW IN NORTH

Continued Cold and Drifts Add to Seriousness of Fuel Situation.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Feb. 10.—Zero weather continued today over the north central states, including Missouri and extending eastward over Michigan. The fuel situation became increasingly serious. A train of 27 cars loaded with coal was stalled in a drift near Canton, Ill. Trucks plowed through drifts to mines in Illinois and Iowa, but were forced to wait for hours for loads.

The Northwestern Railway sent a rotary snow plow out of Tracy, Minn., for the first time in many years. It was accompanied by three engines and carried a crew of 50 shovellers in three cabooses.

The Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie Railway reported that its system was completely tied up yesterday. The Northwestern said service had stopped on all its lines in Wisconsin except those operating between Chicago, Milwaukee, the Twin Cities and Madison. The Milwaukee reported only its main route open through Wisconsin and that a trip to Omaha had been postponed.

Several trains were stuck in drifts in Iowa. Only through trains operated yesterday in Nebraska. Several were stuck in Minnesota. Service was hampered in South Dakota.

One major bus company canceled trips North and West from Chicago. Similar cancellations were ordered in other states.

Below zero temperatures yesterday included Williston, N. D., 30; Havre, Mont., 26; Huron, S. D., 24; Valentine, Neb., 20; Sioux City, Ia., and Evanston, Ill., 18; Des Moines, 12; Marquette, Mich., 12; Chicago and Kankakee, Mo., 10; Moorhead, Minn., 8; La Crosse, Wis.; Detroit and Fort Wayne, Ind., 6.

Freezing weather was reported in the Gulf states from Texas to Georgia.

Illinois highways, buried under snow five to seven feet deep in places, were closed to motorists throughout a large part of the State.

The Chicago Motor Club reported yesterday that every highway throughout the Western and Northern section of the State and as far south as Peoria was impassable because of ice and snow.

Sixteen persons, forced to spend the night in a rural schoolhouse near Belvidere, Ill., when they became trapped in snowdrifts on route 20, were rescued yesterday.

TWO PLAY 30 ST. LOUISANS AT CHECKERS AT ONE TIME

John B. Stiles, Minneapolis, and Basil E. Case, Chicago, Win 2 Games, Lose 1, Draw in 3.

John B. Stiles of Minneapolis and Basil E. Case of Chicago, checker experts, played 30 St. Louis checker players simultaneously in an exhibition at Downtown Y. M. C. A. yesterday afternoon and won 28 games, lost one; three ended in draws. Harry Hudson, 4455 Kennerly avenue, was the only St. Louisian to win from the visitors.

Stiles and Case, walking up and down the long line of boards, made alternate plays against their opponents. Later the two experts opposed each other in a series of 10 games, Case winning one game and the rest ending in draws. The exhibition continued for about seven hours. Because of the special matches, the fourth round of the Y. M. C. A. checker tournament was postponed until next Sunday.

BOTH HOUSES PAY SPECIAL TRIBUTE TO CHARLES CURTIS

Senate Recesses in His Honor After Hearing Brief Eulogies by Three of Its Members.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—Out of respect for former Vice-President Charles Curtis, who died Saturday, the Senate recessed today until tomorrow. The Senate concluded a brief session with comments from three Senators, including Robinson, the Democratic leader, on the career of Curtis.

"Charles Curtis was probably the most distinguished of Kansans," said Senator McGill (Dem.), Kansas, in presenting the resolution for the recess. "He rose from a place of humble birth to a position second in importance in the Government."

Senator Robinson said Curtis' career was "in many respects unequalled and remarkable."

In the House tribute was paid to Curtis by Representative Guyer (Rep.), Kansas.

"For 14 years Charles Curtis served in the House for 20 years he served in the Senate and he was Vice-President of the United States for four years," said Guyer. "He gave his whole life to faithful public service. He reached higher place than has been reached by any other citizen of Kansas."

While the body was moved by train to Kansas, messages of condolence continued to arrive at the home where Mr. Curtis died Saturday.

Many high officials, including Secretary of War and Mrs. Dorn, called yesterday at the home. Curtis shared with his sister, Mrs. Dorothy Gann. The body lay in a black casket near a full-length portrait of the Indian-blooded Republican leader.

Messages of sympathy came from Republicans and Democrats alike. From former President and Mrs. Hoover came a blanket of flowers which will cover the casket when it rests in the Kansas State Capitol.

For two hours before the funeral, the body will lie in state in the Capitol rotunda, not far from where Mr. Curtis stood in August, 1928, before nearly 50,000 persons, to be notified formally of his nomination by the Republican national convention for the Vice-Presidency.

All public offices in Topeka have been asked to close for the funeral, the first ever held in the Kansas statehouse.

Flowers came also from President and Mrs. Roosevelt.

Last night the body was placed aboard a train for Topeka, Kan. A congressional delegation including Senator McGill and Representatives Guyer, Lambertson, Houston, Patterson and Carpenter, representing Kansas, was at the station.

Mrs. Gann, her husband and Mrs. Webster Knight, daughter of Mr. Curtis, left for the West on the same train.

Shortly before the party left the Gann home, Chief Deertoot, an Apache tribe member, called and presented to Mrs. Gann a bow and arrow, requesting that it be buried with Mr. Curtis as part of an Indian ritual.

TOPEKA, Kan., Feb. 10.—The funeral of former Vice-President Curtis will be held in the Kansas Capitol tomorrow.

State business will be suspended while an official group, headed by Gov. Alf M. Landon and the Supreme Court Justices, attend the services in the Representatives hall.

Dr. Harold G. Case, pastor of the First Methodist Church, will preach the sermon.

Snowdrifts in Northwestern Missouri

THESE boys are trying to open a path at their snowbound home near Lathrop in Clinton County. Traffic has been halted and many homes isolated in that part of the State.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—Felix M. Warburg, New York banker and philanthropist, today accepted the chairmanship of the Joint Distribution Committee which is attempting to raise $2,500,000 in the United States and Canada to aid Jews in Germany.

The campaign was decided on at conferences among Warburg, Sir Herbert Samuel and Lord Bearst when the British leaders visited the United States recently. The funds are intended to finance the removal of 25,000 Jews annually from Germany and settling them in other countries.

Among a committee of 50 named to help Warburg are Leon Falk Jr., of Pittsburgh; Salmon P. Hall, of Cleveland; Simon Lazarus of Columbus, O.; James H. Becker of Chicago; Judge Eli Frank of Baltimore; Louis E. Kirstein of Boston; Abe Brothman of Montreal; Louis Pamberger of Newark; Aaron S. Rauh of St. Louis; Meyer L. Prentiss of Detroit and Harold Hirsch of Atlanta.

Wayman is of the opinion that prosecution of violators of the smoke ordinance will be facilitated by the recent report of a committee of the St. Louis Medical Society, declaring dense smoke to be definitely injurious to health.

Wayman pointed out, however, that under the City Charter, smoke regulation cannot be supervised by the Health Department, but must be a function of the Department of Public Safety. However, in the light of the Medical Society Committee's report, the city, in all future cases involving violation of the smoke ordinance, will be able to introduce testimony that smoke is harmful to health.

The development in recent years of automatic stokers and other devices to abate smoke would also bolster the city's case against violators of the smoke ordinance, Wayman said. In the past, defendants have contended that there was no known device to abate smoke, but this defense could no longer be offered, he asserted.

Wayman was asked by reporters whether the new ordinance would cover the use of stoves in dwellings in the poorer sections of the city. He said that though a provision could be incorporated into the ordinance requiring the owners of such stoves to use coke or some other fuel emitting a small amount of smoke or none at all.

Wayman said he hoped to have the ordinance ready for submission to the Board of Aldermen within the next few weeks.

The report of the Medical Society's smoke committee, accepted by the society at a meeting last Jan. 28, advocated the formation of a permanent civic organization on smoke abatement, and stated that smoke was responsible for the following physical effects: Irritation of the upper respiratory tract, contributing to the production of rhinitis, sinusitis, tracheitis and bronchitis; pneumoconiosis; aggravation of the cough of patients with chronic lung ailments, indirectly aggravating the primary lesions; conjunctivitis; increased eye disturbances among school children, and malnutrition.

PROPOSES ENFORCING SMOKE ELIMINATION

City Counselor in New Law Would Enlarge Powers of Commissioner.

A provision requiring the use of automatic stokers or devices to eliminate smoke for establishments with heating units which emit dense smoke, will probably be incorporated into the city's new smoke ordinance, City Counselor E. H. Wayman, who is preparing the ordinance, told reporters today.

This provision, Wayman said, would apply not only to factories and other industrial plants, but to dwellings as well, and would empower the City Smoke Commissioner to seal heating units whose owners consistently refused to install smoke consuming devices, or to use abatement measures.

The present city smoke ordinance, like previous local smoke laws, includes all types of industrial plants and dwellings, but does not authorize the Smoke Commissioner to seal the units of any establishment smaller than a four-family dwelling.

Wayman is of the opinion that prosecution of violators of the smoke ordinance will be facilitated by the recent report of a committee of the St. Louis Medical Society, declaring dense smoke to be definitely injurious to health.

Wayman pointed out, however, that under the City Charter, smoke regulation cannot be supervised by the Health Department, but must be a function of the Department of Public Safety. However, in the light of the Medical Society Committee's report, the city, in all future cases involving violation of the smoke ordinance, will be able to introduce testimony that smoke is harmful to health.

The development in recent years of automatic stokers and other devices to abate smoke would also bolster the city's case against violators of the smoke ordinance, Wayman said. In the past, defendants have contended that there was no known device to abate smoke, but this defense could no longer be offered, he asserted.

Wayman was asked by reporters whether the new ordinance would cover the use of stoves in dwellings in the poorer sections of the city. He said that though a provision could be incorporated into the ordinance requiring the owners of such stoves to use coke or some other fuel emitting a small amount of smoke or none at all.

Wayman said he hoped to have the ordinance ready for submission to the Board of Aldermen within the next few weeks.

WARBURG HEADS COMMITTEE TO AID JEWS IN GERMANY

To Direct Campaign for $2,500,000; Aaron S. Rauh, St. Louis, a Member.

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—Felix M. Warburg, New York banker and philanthropist, today accepted the chairmanship of the Joint Distribution Committee which is attempting to raise $2,500,000 in the United States and Canada to aid Jews in Germany.

The campaign was decided on at conferences among Warburg, Sir Herbert Samuel and Lord Bearst when the British leaders visited the United States recently. The funds are intended to finance the removal of 25,000 Jews annually from Germany and settling them in other countries.

Among a committee of 50 named to help Warburg are Leon Falk Jr., of Pittsburgh; Salmon P. Hall, of Cleveland; Simon Lazarus of Columbus, O.; James H. Becker of Chicago; Judge Eli Frank of Baltimore; Louis E. Kirstein of Boston; Abe Brothman of Montreal; Louis Pamberger of Newark; Aaron S. Rauh of St. Louis; Meyer L. SAN FRANCISCO REPUBLICANS INVITE 'AL SMITH DEMOCRATS'

"We Should Stand Together" They Tell Anti-New Dealers in Asking Them to Luncheon.

By the Associated Press.
SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 10.—San Francisco County Republicans have invited "Al Smith Democrats" to attend the Lincoln day Republican luncheon here Wednesday.

Declaring "anti-New Deal Democrats have more in common with the Republicans at the present time than with any other political group," Marshall Hale, chairman of the County Committee, said: "We welcome them to our side. This is the time when we should all stand together and fight for constitutional government as against autocracy; for free institutions as against a menacing dictatorship outside and above the law."

John L. McNab, friend of former President Hoover, will speak.

COMMUNITY FORUM RADIO PROGRAM ANNIVERSARY

Branch Rickey, vice-president of the St. Louis Cardinals, and Forest C. Donnell, attorney, who participated in a Socratic dialogue on the first Community Forum radio program six years ago, were again the speakers on the anniversary program yesterday on KSD.

Rickey commented on the large number of serious public questions which have arisen since the Socratic dialogue six years ago on what was then considered a weighty matter, "Has Father Deserted the Home?"

"If the founders of this program had deliberately set out to choose a six-year period since the beginning of the century that would encompass significant events, they could not have found six years more packed with profound questions," he said.

Donnell congratulated the Community Forum "for the information and enlightenment which it has brought to us, for the enlightenment of public opinion to which it has contributed and for the example which it brings before us of fidelity and continuity in performance of duty."

BOTH HOUSES PAY SPECIAL TRIBUTE TO CHARLES CURTIS

Senate Recesses in His Honor After Hearing Brief Eulogies by Three of Its Members.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—Out of respect for former Vice-President Charles Curtis, who died Saturday, the Senate recessed today until tomorrow. The Senate concluded a brief session with comments from three Senators, including Robinson, the Democratic leader, on the career of Curtis.

"Charles Curtis was probably the most distinguished of Kansans," said Senator McGill (Dem.), Kansas, in presenting the resolution for the recess. "He rose from a place of humble birth to a position second in importance in the Government," Senator Robinson said. "Curtis' career was 'in many respects unusual and remarkable.'"

In the House tribute was paid to Curtis by Representative Guyer (Rep.), Kansas.

"For 14 years Charles Curtis served in the House, for 20 years he served in the Senate and he was Vice-President of the United States for four years," said Guyer. "He gave his whole life to faithful public service. He reached higher places than has been reached by any other citizen of Kansas."

While the body was moved by train to Kansas, messages of condolence continued to arrive at the home where Mr. Curtis died Saturday.

Many high officials, including Secretary of War and Mrs. Dern, called yesterday at the home where Curtis shared with his sister, Mrs. Dorothy Gann. The body lay in a black casket near a full-length portrait of the Indian-blooded Republican leader.

Messages of sympathy came from Republicans and Democrats alike. From former President and Mrs. Hoover came a blanket of flowers which will cover the casket when it rests in the Kansas State Capitol.

For two hours before the funeral, the body will lie in state in the Capitol rotunda, not far from where Mr. Curtis stood in August, 1928, before nearly 50,000 persons.

To be notified formally of his nomination by the Republican national convention for the Vice-Presidency.

All public offices in Topeka have been asked to close for the funeral, the first ever held in the Kansas statehouse.

TOPEKA, Kan., Feb. 10.—The funeral of former Vice-President Charles Curtis will be held in the Kansas Capitol tomorrow.

State business will be suspended while an official group, headed by Gov. Alf M. Landon and the Supreme Court Justices, attend the services in the Representatives hall.

Wayman was asked by reporters whether the new ordinance would cover the use of stoves in dwellings in the poorer sections of the city. He said that he thought a provision could be incorporated into the ordinance requiring the owners of such stoves to use coke or some other fuel emitting a small amount of smoke or none at all.

Wayman said he hoped to have the ordinance ready for submission to the Board of Aldermen within the next few weeks.

The report of the Medical Society's smoke committee, accepted by the society at a meeting last Jan. 28, advocated the formation of a permanent city organization on smoke abatement, and stated that smoke was responsible for the following physical effects: Irritation of the upper respiratory tract, contributing to the production of rhinitis, sinusitis, tracheitis and bronchitis; pneumoconiosis; aggravation of the cough of patients with chronic lung ailments, indirectly aggravating the primary lesions; conjunctivitis; increased eye disturbances among school children, and malnutrition.

The new scale provided weekly salaries of $35 for truck drivers and $31.50 for helpers. About 800 drivers and helpers were affected by the new wage scale. The union announced that drivers for mattress manufacturing companies, formerly unorganized, have been accepted for membership.

SAN FRANCISCO REPUBLICANS INVITE 'AL SMITH DEMOCRATS'

"We Should Stand Together" They Tell Anti-New Dealers in Asking Them to Luncheon.

By the Associated Press. SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 10.—San Francisco County Republicans have invited "Al Smith Democrats" and anti-New Deal Democrats to attend the Lincoln day Republican luncheon here Wednesday.

Declaring "anti-New Deal Democrats have more in common with the Republicans at the present time than with any other political group," Marshall Hale, chairman of the County Committee, said: "We welcome them to our side. This is the time when we should all stand together and fight for constitutional government as against autocracy; for free institutions as against a menacing dictatorship outside and above the law."

John L. McNab, friend of former President Hoover, will speak.

U. S. ARMY ASKS FOR $374,981,521, PEACE TIME HIGH

Appropriation Bill Would Increase Regular Forces and National Guard and Coast Defenses.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—More seacoast and Western outpost defense, further increases in army enlisted strength and the National Guard, and expansion of the air force were recommended to the House today in a War Department appropriation bill carrying $374,981,521 for the nation's land forces in the 1937 fiscal year.

This national defense total was another peace-time high. It was $28,803,501 more than the $351,178,020 allowed for the current financial year ending June 30, although $43,989 below budget estimates. Nor did the total include a grant of authority to contract for $10,669,786 worth of equipment, reappropriation of $2,645,925 and $288,000 made available of purchase of discharge funds. Their addition brought military funds available for the next fiscal year to $388,782,232.

Including $168,359,985 for non-military activities, the bill's total was $553,341,506 in outright appropriations. Disregarding budget recommendations to hold the army down to 147,000 men next year, the Appropriations Committee added $2,344,211 in reappropriations with the stipulation that the enlisted strength be brought to not less than 150,000, or only 15,000 short of the maximum 165,000 strength ordered last year by Congress.

Moslem Leader and Wife at His Golden Jubilee in Bombay

AGA KHAN and the BEGUM AGA KHAN
At celebration marking the fiftieth anniversary of his spiritual rule over the millions of Ismaili Mohammedans. During the ceremony the Aga Khan was weighed in the scales against a heap of gold. About $125,000 worth of gold balanced his weight. Part of the gold will be donated to the poor. Thousands of his followers were present at the celebration.

tee permitted the purchase and contracting for 58 more planes than the 507 the budget recommended. For this purpose there was made available $45,540,177, including contract authorizations of $10,669,786, or $16,038,655 more than was authorized this year.

After listening to pleas from the field high command the committee increased budget seacoast defense estimates by $3,000,000 each for the West Coast and Hawaii and $725,000 for Panama "toward approved projects for those areas estimated to cost $15,610,153, $6,765,321 and $3,316,342, respectively."

In overriding budget estimates on increasing army strength, the committee said, the increase was intended "for completely garrisoning the Panama and Hawaiian departments." The committee called attention to that part of the western outpost officers' testimony which was not deleted from the hearings for military reasons, saying they "presented some very illuminating and helpful information, a great deal of it, of necessity, off the record."

National Guard Increase.
The National Guard also was liberally dealt with. The bill carried funds for 6000 more officers and men, to bring the total strength to 200,000 and $388,400 more than budget estimates for modernizing half of the guard's heavy field artillery pieces.

The committee told the House "a larger military budget for 1937 was inevitable," and that the surprising thing was that Congress had not been asked for even more to support last session's laws increasing the man power of the regular army and National Guard, and the Thompson act directing the employment each year of 1000 reserve officers on active duty for a 12-month period, 50 of them to be commissioned in the regular army. No funds were allowed for the Thompson law. The committee said it was felt its provisions could be postponed a year.

The committee's report said the additional enlisted men it allowed over the 147,000 total contemplated by the budget would permit bringing the Hawaiian and Panama strength up to what it will be under the full 165,000 man power. The bill provided, also, for an average of 1500 officers and 1600 enlisted men to be in flying-pay status, an increase of 98 officers.

"Troublesome Times."
Recommendations of army officers made at hearings on the bill accompanied the report. Gen. Martin Craig, chief of staff, was quoted as testifying: "It is perfectly evident to everyone that troublesome times have again arrived in the world. A state of war exists in Africa, Asia is resounding to the tramp of marching men. These are far from our shores. We do not see how they can possibly concern us. Nevertheless, it is unwise to neglect the lessons of our past experience."

Testimony Deleted.
Deletion of testimony in the printed record of appropriation bill hearings is unusual, but only rows of asterisks indicated here and there in the printed pages what the army generals disclosed about detailed plans for tightening up defense.

No secret was made, however, of the $50,000,000 five-year program for Hawaii urged by Major-General Hugh A. Drum, commander of the department out of "the crossroads of the Pacific"—$20,000,000 for defense and another $30,000,000 for housing and other "human need or welfare" requisites. Similarly the hearings disclosed Major-General Lytle Brown's demands as commander of the Panama Canal Department for a $25,000,000 five-year program of defense installations.

Major-General Paul B. Malone commanding the Ninth Corps Area at San Francisco asked Congress to "take action be taken at the earliest possible date as will insure to the Pacific Coast that sense of security which is now somewhat lacking"—$15,610,153 worth of defense installations.

Pacific Coast Defense.
Malone said that for west coast defense it was more important to start from the north with first consideration given Puget Sound and the Columbia River next, but with San Francisco regarded as the main harbor, followed by Los Angeles and San Diego. He said "careful studies" of Alaska and adjacent waters were under way by the War and Navy Departments.

"The vast extent of the coast line," he said, "makes it impracticable to defend all areas by permanent installations, but we must make it impossible for a hostile fleet to stand off at our harbors beyond the range of our guns and pour destructive fire into our harbor cities and into the harbor installations on which we depend for our defense and the maintenance of our commerce."

Air Defense Called Feeble.
Figures showing the Army will have only 250 airplanes in first-class fighting trim a year from June were given sub-committee by Major-General Oscar Westover, air corps chief. He told the committee, too, that air defenses for the nation's territories and possessions are "almost impotent."

For five years, Westover said, the Air Corps has been losing plane strength. Against 1371 new planes received, he counted off 1621 that became obsolete or were lost. "Further," he said, "there is no immediate prospect of improvement in this situation. It is estimated that not more than 736 airplanes now on order will be delivered during the fiscal years 1936 and 1937. During this time there will be estimated losses of 981 airplanes."

"The net results of these factors, therefore, will leave the Air Corps on June 30, 1937, with an estimated number of 779 project airplanes, with about 529 planes classed as obsolete on account of having passed the five-year age limit."

force, the key to the nation's aerial defense, has only 383 of the 980 active planes it should have and a large number of these are obsolete. The Air Corps reserve has inadequate equipment.

It is impossible for the Air Corps to carry out minimum anti-aircraft training of their army branches.

Three hundred planes that should be overhauled must be continued in use.

NEW DEAL ON DEFENSIVE, COL. FRANK KNOX DECLARES

Suggests Labeling Goods to Show Tax Consumer Pays on Each Article He Buys.

By the Associated Press.
PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 10.—Col. Frank Knox, Chicago publisher, told members of the Republican League of Pennsylvania today that "the New Deal is now on the defensive."

"There was a time when President Roosevelt referred to himself as 'the quarterback of the team,'" said Knox. "It does not look like the same team or the same quarterback. It has made a 'safety' play in recalling the cotton, potatoes and tobacco laws, and is now compelled to start all over again from its own 20-yard line with the length of the field to go for a touchdown."

He suggested that every business man, in labeling his own product, might put on the label the amount of taxes the consumer pays when the product is bought.

"Nor could this be considered an affront to government," he said, "on the contrary, it would be a distinct benefit to those charged with the conduct of public affairs. It would make the people tax conscious and would halt definitely, wasteful spending of their money."

HEAD OF YOUNG DEMOCRATS OF MISSOURI CRITICISED

Paul A. Williams Says Roger Taylor Has Usurped State Committee's Indorsement Powers.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Feb. 10.—Charging that President Roger Taylor of the Missouri Young Democratic Clubs had usurped indorsement powers of the State Executive Committee, Paul A. Williams of Columbia today dispatched a letter to club members asking support for his candidacy for president at the State convention in Jefferson City Feb. 21-22. Williams estimated he had pledges of about half of the 900 votes which he thinks will be necessary for election.

"I am opposed to the president of the Young Democratic Clubs of Missouri taking the entire privilege of indorsing applicants for jobs, to the exclusion of the State Executive Committee," Williams said. Although he did not mention Taylor in the letter, Williams said in an interview that the Texas County Republican nomination for Secretary of State.

Japan Intends to Close Of China to U. S. Even Necessary, Pittman

Congress Will Not Be Bullied
Advocating Naval and Air
Protect Rights

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—Declaring Japan intends to close the door of China to America, "even if it is necessary to accomplish it," Chairman Pittman (Dem.), Nevada, of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, today advocated naval and air forces "sufficient to protect United States' rights."

Hurling criticism at Japanese policy in a speech on the Senate floor, he spoke of treaties "openly and ruthlessly violated." He referred to what he called Japanese "threats," "propaganda" and "arrogance."

"China is still an independent sovereign Government, at peace with the world, and desirous of living with us," he said, "and there is nothing in the circumstances that can legally or long physically interfere with such trade."

Pittman called upon Congress to "take cognizance" of the island empire's policy toward China and "its intended effect upon the United States." He declared Japanese armies' conquest of Manchuria "was in violation of the covenant of the League of Nations, the Kellogg-Brandt Pact to outlaw war, and the Nine-Power Pact."

He asserted that, in asking Congress to study the Eastern question, he had in mind that "Congress alone has the power, and the duty imposed upon it to appropriate money for the national defense."

Freedom of the Seas.
The Senator quoted a Japanese writer as saying America "is ready to renounce her traditional principle of the freedom of the seas."

"Well," the chairman declared, "the United States does not intend to surrender the freedom of the seas and recognizes no jurisdiction in any Government on the high seas beyond the three-mile limit in time of peace."

WOMAN DOCTOR HIT, FATALY HURT BY AUTO

Dr. Louise Blattner, 74, Suffers Fractured Skull in Accident at Kingshighway and Berthold.

BOTH OF HER LEGS ALSO ARE BROKEN

Driver Says She Stepped Into Path of Car—Another Woman Victim Identified.

Dr. Louise Blattner, a physician, 1010 Hodiarnont avenue, died at City Hospital today of a fractured skull suffered when struck by an automobile at Kingshighway and Berthold avenue at 11:30 o'clock last night.

The driver, Ned Stein, a clerk, 3879 Connecticut street, said she stepped from the west curb of Kingshighway into the path of his car. Both legs also were fractured.

The American Medical Association directory of physicians listed her as 74 years old and a graduate, in 1894, of the National University of Arts and Sciences here, which since has gone out of existence.

Auto Victim Identified as Miss Emma Cadwallader, About 70.

The body of a woman killed last night by an automobile of Good-100 boulevard, a short distance south of Cafes avenue, was identified at the Morgue today as that of Miss Emma Cadwallader, 5736 Clemens avenue. She was about 70 years old.

The identification was made by William Walter, also of 5736 Clemens, who said he was executor of Miss Cadwallader's estate.

Formerly Miss Cadwallader was an art teacher in private schools and in various Baptist Colleges in Illinois, Arkansas and Tennessee. A brother, Frank Cadwallader, who lives in Springfield, Ill., is the closest surviving relative.

Miss Cadwallader left her home about 8 o'clock last night after mentioning to other occupants of the house an intention to attend church services.

Lari Slattery, a student, 19 years old, of 1237 Temple place, told police she was driving south in Good-fellow when Miss Cadwallader appeared suddenly in front of his machine. He swerved, but the left front fender of his automobile struck her.

Slattery and two companions took Miss Cadwallader to St. Luke's Hospital, where she was pronounced dead of a broken neck. The body remained unidentified until shortly after noon today.

Webster Groves Man Killed; Auto Sidelined Near Memphis, Tenn. George A. Euwer, 31, 600 Atlantic avenue, Webster Groves, a salesman for the National Ammonia Co., Inc., was killed yesterday in an automobile accident near Memphis, Tenn.

The accident occurred 16 miles northeast of Memphis when Euwer's automobile was sidelined by another, left the highway and rolled down a high embankment. He was driving alone from Memphis to Nashville, Tenn., on a sales trip.

His wife, Mrs. Katherine Euwer, and a brother, Herbert D. Euwer, left St. Louis yesterday for Memphis. The body will be taken to Wilkesburg, Pa., his former home, for burial.

25 MEN CLEAR ROAD OF SNOW TO GET SICK BOY TO DOCTOR

Train Held Overtime at Reserve, Kan., for Lad, 5, Suffering From Abscessed Teeth.

RESERVE, Kan., Feb. 10. — A crew of 25 men worked to open a snow blocked road yesterday and a Missouri Pacific passenger train which runs from Kansas City to Omaha, was held overtime so that Marvin Ebel, 5 years old, could get to Falls City, Neb., for immediate medical attention.

With Marvin was his mother, Mrs. Amos Ebel. The Ebel home is two miles from here and when Marvin developed a severe case of abscessed teeth it became necessary to take him at once to a dentist. Falls City, Neb., is a 10-minute run by train from Reserve, but the problem of getting to Reserve first had to be solved. Twenty-five men with shovels removed drifted snow from the road that led to the station so that the Ebels could catch the train.

Count of Covadonga Better. HAVANA, Feb. 10. — Friends of the Count of Covadonga, son of former King Alfonso of Spain, said today that physicians had declared him "out of danger" following a series of blood transfusions. The Count, who suffers from hemophilia, slept well last night following a transfusion yesterday and gained strength.

Gas Jets Open; Three Dead. By the Associated Press. PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 10.—Three persons were found dead from gas fumes last night. The victims were identified as John Carapinski, 5 years old; Mary Cisliska, 65, and Andy Miscocka, 45. Police said gas jets of a stove were open. All lived at the same address.

"NUMBERS GAME" NEW FEDERAL TARGET

J. Edgar Hoover Says Promoters Crossing State Lines Will Face Federal Charges.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—Calling the "numbers game" the nation's greatest racket, J. Edgar Hoover today discussed the parts that agents of the Intelligence Bureau of the Department of Justice are doing in a co-operative drive on organized crime. Head of the bureau, Hoover said that they are working closely with local police, helping to "point" investigations with information obtained in other cities.

Where gangsters step across state lines in their activity or interfere with interstate commerce, Hoover said, the Federal men have authority to take them into custody themselves and inaugurate prosecution. "Local officers have been very co-operative in our joint efforts to stamp out the leech of racketeering which is sucking at the country's business life," Hoover declared. "We can work closely for our common end."

Muscles All Tied Up? If you are tied up with muscular pain, douse on some Penorub. It penetrates to "hit the pain spot," brings amazing ten-second relief. ends are the same. Mayor La Guardia of New York has been especially co-operative. How heavy the burden is, he said, can be seen in the $6,000,000-a-year income which he said was going to Arthur Fliegenheimer of New York, the gangster who was known as Dutch Schultz, and who was shot to death last fall.

Asserting that gambling is a racket which is often hard for local officers to cope with, Hoover said the scheme of selling daily bets on financial figures exacts a tremendous toll. He explained that Federal agents can only attack this racket directly when bets are sent through the mails or by express.

Working with New York police, the Federal agents have moved against alleged rackets in artichokes and vice. Federal charges stand against persons suspected of participating in the racket which sought to corner the artichoke market. Mayor La Guardia moved against the same group when he issued a proclamation recently stopping all sale of artichokes.

When New York police made their recent vice raids, the Federal agents arrested a woman charged with inducing girls to go from Pittsburgh, Pa., to New York. More Federal arrests followed shortly in Miami, Fla. The Federal men, Hoover said, traced a connecting link between the two groups of offenders.

PATH IS DUG TO SICK WOMAN Three Snowplows Used to Clear Four Miles in Illinois.

By the Associated Press. CANTON, Ill., Feb. 10.—Three snowplows manned by a crew of highway maintenance men cleared a path through eight and 10 feet drifts yesterday to the home of Mrs. Thomas Dickson, who is seriously ill.

The men, assisted by State highway policemen, cleared four miles of road so physicians might reach the home. The work was started under orders from Gov. Henry Horner to whom an appeal was made. Mrs. Dickson's husband died suddenly in the yard of his home Friday night.

Our tense modern life affects DIGESTION

BRAKES SCREAM— as traffic clogs the street from curb to curb. Nerves quiver with fatigue. Feel those stomach muscles tighten? Light a Camel for digestion's sake. Enjoy to the full the mildness of Camels. And the actual aid they give to digestion.

Like the Mermaid Tavern of Shakespeare's day, Keen's English Chop House in New York (shown at the right) is famous as a gathering place of congenial spirits. Here cluster memories of John Drew and that great gourmet, "Diamond Jim" Brady... Theodore Roosevelt and the immortal "Buffalo Bill"... Taft, Belasco, Augustus Thomas, and Clyde Fitch—a list that is almost endless.

"We've noticed that patrons who appreciate fine foods also appreciate fine tobaccos," says William (above), of Keen's. "Camels are a favorite at Keen's English Chop House. We've noticed that our guests who smoke Camels during and after meals seem to find more pleasure in dining."

JUNGLE BOUND! "I smoke Camels for digestion's sake," says Frank Buck, famous wild animal collector. Jungle conditions for eating are far from ideal. "Camels for flavor!" he says. "They are rich and yet delicately mild."

Smoking Camels Found to Ease the Strain and Promote Well-Being

Life gets more complex. The pace grows faster. People live harder. Where do we see the effects? Frequently on digestion, so often overtaxed by the busy whirl! It is significant that smoking Camels has been established as a definite aid in promoting good digestion. You'll find it worth while to turn to Camels yourself. They have a mildness and delicacy that never grow flat or tiresome. Decide to make the pleasant experience of smoking Camels part of your daily life, and see how much more zest you have for smoking and how your digestion is measurably improved. Camels set you right!

MURRAY MURDOCK (in center), of the N. Y. Rangers, has played over 500 straight hockey games. "I often have to eat and run," Murray says. "Smoking Camels helps me to enjoy and digest my food."

COSTLIER TOBACCOS!

Lackland Bloom To Race Metcalfe At Girls' Meet

Lackland Bloom, Washington University sprinter, will be the opponent of Ralph Metcalfe, Negro star of Marquette, in the special 100-yard exhibition at the National A. A. U. women's indoor track and field championships Wednesday night at the Arena.
This announcement was made today by Dr. Norman Rathert, a co-promoter of the meet. Dr. Rathert said he had received Bloom's signed entry blank. Bloom will be given a handicap, a distance of which is still to be determined.
Alice Arden, National A. A. U. champion indoor high jumper, and a teammate, Jean Hiller, from the St. George Dugan Club of Brooklyn, N. Y., arrived last night for the coming meet.
Miss Arden, who successfully defended her indoor title at the Arena last year, expressed confidence in her ability to retain the title for another year.
The deadline for out-of-town entries is set for today. One new name was added to the list yesterday when Tidy Pickett, Negro girl sprinter and hurdler from Chicago, sent in her entry. Miss Pickett, a competitor in the 1932 Olympics, will enter both the sprint and hurdle events.
Several more girl stars are expected to arrive on the scene of action today, notably Evelyn Hall of Chicago, and the Supreme Ladies' Team of Toronto. Mrs. Hall is defending champion in the hurdles.

FIVE MEN KILLED IN TAMPICO LABOR CLASHES; 18 HURT

Federal Troops Ordered Into Mexican Seaport to Guard Headquarters of Union Stevedores.

ALL OPERATIONS AT DOCKS SUSPENDED

Maritime Workers Arrange Demonstration Today Against What They Call 'Outright Aggression.'

MEXICO, D. F., Feb. 10.—The Mexican Government ordered today Federal troops at Tampico today to prevent any recurrence there of the labor clashes in which five persons were killed yesterday and 18 wounded.
President Lazaro Cardenas, who was at Monterrey attempting to solve a labor dispute in that industrial center, directed Gen. Juan Almazan, commander of the Nuevo Leon military zone, to take control of Tampico and to investigate the conflict.
Gen. Almazan ordered the troops to guard headquarters of union stevedores and their rival workers.

Details of the Clash.
Tampico dispatches said a large group of workers, supporting municipal officials who were removed from office last week, held a demonstration and attacked the longshoremen's headquarters, the maritime workers returning the fire.
Three stevedores were killed and five wounded; two of their rivals were wounded fatally and 13 injured.
All port operations were suspended.
No arrests were made, however, police reporting they were unable to find those responsible for the shooting.
Although Federal troops dispersed the fighters, Tampico dispatches said, feeling ran high in the northeastern seaport, and the maritime workers planned a mass demonstration later today in protest against what they called "outright aggression."

President Talks at Monterrey.
At Monterrey, President Cardenas told 13,000 demonstrators yesterday that he would settle a strike in the Vidriera glass factory in accordance with law.
Appealing to both workers and employers to maintain a calm attitude, the President said he was convinced that "Communism does not exist in Mexico." He said the glass factory strike, which caused employers to impose a two-day shutdown of business last week in protest against alleged Communist activity, was a "natural result of the attempt of the working class to improve its lot."
The President, addressing the workers after they had sung the "Internationale" and the Mexican national anthem, said his Government would continue its attempts to improve the social conditions of the proletariat.
In Mexico, D. F., employees of 20 business concerns were preparing to walk out. Workers in several hotels and restaurants and shoe store employees intended to strike for higher wages. Drug store clerks also planned to call a walk-out.

LIBERTY LEAGUE PROPOSAL

Meeting Wednesday to Discuss Washington U. Chapter.
Organization of a Washington University chapter of the American Liberty League will be discussed at a meeting at Duncker Hall at the university at 2:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, called by Adolph Schwartz, 711 Heman avenue, University City, a pre-legal student, and chairman of the organization group.
Prof. Samuel Marsh, faculty sponsor of the group, said similar branches of the Liberty League have been organized in American colleges and universities, and about 20 students have signed their intention of organizing a chapter at Washington. John P. McCammon, an attorney, will speak at the meeting Wednesday.

SON OF IRISH PRESIDENT DIES

Brian de Valera, 20, Fatally Hurt When Thrown From Horse.
DUBLIN, Feb. 10.—Brian de Valera, 20 years old, second oldest son of Eamon de Valera, President of the Irish Free State, died yesterday from injuries suffered when he was thrown from a horse in Phoenix Park.
He was horseback riding with his cousin when he was struck on the head by a branch of a tree, knocked from his saddle and dragged along the ground. The President's son was a student at Dublin University.

A. F. of L. Head Urges Amending Constitution to Let Congress Make Laws for 'Social Justice'

Green Says Present Condition of Legislative Branch Is 'Impossible'—Wants Stop Put to 'Judicial Subordination.'

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—Criticism of the Supreme Court invalidation of acts of Congress, William Green said yesterday that "what government becomes too rigid to meet changing needs, revolution breaks the deadlock."
The president of the American Federation of Labor declared editorially in the current "American Federationist" that "a liberal interpretation of the spirit and purpose of the Constitution would enable us to meet changing situations as easily as under the unwritten Constitution of Great Britain."
"But what we have is interpretation by lawyers who for the most part do not distinguish between the function of a practicing lawyer and the impartiality essential to a judge, who are not closely enough in touch with what is happening in the work-a-day world to apply principles to concrete situations."

Amendment Favored.
After urging the Constitution's amendment to permit enactment of "social justice" legislation and to stop "judicial subordination" of Congress, Green said that the present position of Congress was "impossible."
"Precedents followed in the past are so contradictory that there are no judicial principles which can guide legislation," he added.
Judges may rule only on specific situations. Privileged interests challenge the constitutionality of all social legislation and the resulting uncertainty encourages lawlessness.

TROOPS KILL 5 MORE IN RIOTS IN SYRIA

Nationalist Demonstrations Against French Rule Reported in Many Cities.

BEIRUT, Syria, Feb. 10.—Five more Nationalist rioters were killed today by troops in Syria when demonstrations against French rule spread to Deir-Ez-Zor on the Euphrates.
The total dead in 23 days of disorder in the country is 25.
New demonstrations broke out in Damascus and the bazars were closed at Aleppo, Lattaquieh, Tripoli and Sidra.
Four hundred and fifty persons were arrested at Homs, where three were killed in rioting Friday.
At Hama, where 10 demonstrators were killed by troops Friday, a Syrian Deputy, Dr. Chikaki, was arrested.

PROF. ULLOA DIES; DECLARED COLUMBUS WAS BORN IN SPAIN

Peruvian Historian Who Stirred Up Controversy Among Scholars.
MADRID, Feb. 10.—Prof. Luis Ulloa, Peruvian historian who stirred up a controversy among scholars with his assertion that Christopher Columbus was not born in Genoa, Italy, but in Catalonia, Spain, died today.
Prof. Ulloa, director of the Peruvian National Library, told the Americanists' Congress in Hamburg, Germany, Sept. 12, 1930, that Columbus' trip to America in 1492, long thought to be the voyage on which he discovered America, was actually his second trip there.
"After eight months' study among Spanish archives in Madrid," Ulloa said, "I can definitely assert that Columbus paid his first visit to the new world by way of Ireland, Greenland, Labrador and Newfoundland. This was before America's official discovery, indeed before he was in contact with the Spanish Kings."
He said Columbus and a Danish corsair discovered the American continent, "without the aid of the Spanish King."

12,000 WORKERS AT LONDON MEAT MARKET END STRIKE

Work Unlikely Before Tuesday; Shorter Hours and Higher Wages Were Demanded.
LONDON, Feb. 10.—Striking workers at the Smithfield Central Market, London's meat "clearing house," voted at a mass meeting yesterday to return to work. Employers and workers will meet tomorrow to lay plans for resuming work which officials believe unlikely before tomorrow night.
The workers struck last Monday after employers had refused their demands for higher wages and shorter hours. More than 12,000 market and dock laborers refused to return to work and meat supplies valued at hundreds of thousands of dollars were tied up.
Independent distributors arranged transportation depots in suburban sections of London to provide restaurants, hotels and housewives with meat during the strike.

10 REPORTED KILLED IN FIRE

Cairo Dispatch Says 450 Homes at Bata Were Destroyed.
CAIRO, Egypt, Feb. 10.—Ten persons were reported killed last night in a fire which was said to have destroyed 450 dwellings at Bata in Dakahlia Province.
Many of the residents, it was reported, were forced to spend the night in nearby fields as the blaze spread.

WHEAT PRICE-FIXING PLAN ADOPTED IN NEW ZEALAND

Farmers to Get $1.05 a Bushel, Millers, $67 a Ton, Bakers, 20 Cents a 4-Pound Loaf.

WELLINGTON, N. Z., Feb. 10.—New Zealand's Labor Government announced today the first provisions of its "guaranteed prices" policy—a proposed program for stabilization of the wheat, flour and bread industries.
Entitled the "Sullivan Plan," named after D. G. Sullivan, Minister of Industries, Commerce and Railways, the program is designed to give the farmer a higher price for his wheat, to end price-cutting by millers and bakers, to safeguard the consumer and to increase wages.
Under the scheme, the farmer will receive an average of 52½ pence ($1.05) a bushel for his wheat. This will permit delivery of flour into bakeries at a price of £13, 8 shillings and 7 pence a ton (approximately $67), the Government says, and the sale of a four-pound loaf of bread at retail in the main centers at 10 pence (20 cents).
The Sullivan plan also involves an embargo on importation of flour. It is expected to result in increased wheat production.

ATTACKS ON JEWS INCREASE IN POLAND; SHOPS BOYCOTTED

12 Killed in Recent Disorders in Which Poles Have Been Forced to Fire.

WARSAW, Feb. 10.—Suppression of anti-Semitic disorders in rural districts of Poland is becoming increasingly difficult, it was reported today, as Jews have been forced to use firearms in recent weeks, and 12 persons have been killed.
A disturbance at Konin, near Lodz, in which three Jews were killed and several rioters injured last week, was an outgrowth of a widespread anti-Jewish boycott in rural districts. Villagers are urging Gentiles to purchase goods only from Gentiles, and on several occasions have blocked roads in an attempt to prevent Jewish-owned carts from entering towns on market days.
Jewish newspapers report that the conclusion of Jewish participation in some small towns is becoming desperate. In Przemyk, near Radom, 600 Jewish families were reported to be nearly destitute, because Jewish shops there have been closed by the boycott.

NAVAL PARLEY COMMITTEE IN UNEXPECTED AGREEMENT

Arrive at Terms for Limitation on All Types of Warships Except Battleships.

LONDON, Feb. 10.—The main technical committee of the International Naval Conference came today to an unexpected agreement today on limitations for all types of warships except battleships.
One prominent delegate described the outlook for an agreement on the size of battleships as "much more hopeful." The next meeting of the committee will be Wednesday.
The various delegations are working with the British on a formula which, it was understood, will set a maximum size limit of 35,000 tons, the limitation advocated by the United States.
Viscount Monsell, presiding officer of the conference, called a secret meeting for tomorrow of heads of four delegations.
The battleship issue was discussed in private by Norman H. Davis, United States ambassador-at-large, and Charles Corbin, French ambassador to London but the talk was inconclusive. Corbin made clear the French had definite instructions to stand pat on their demand for 27,500-ton battleships.

BRITISH ARMS PLAN TO COST TWO BILLIONS

Army, Navy and Aviation Expansion to Be Proposed to Parliament.

LONDON, Feb. 10.—The defense departments of the British Government are working at top speed to have the full program for expansion and modernization of the army, navy and air force ready for submission to Parliament early next month. The Conservative press predicts the program will be financed by a loan of possibly £400,000,000 (about $2,000,000,000). The plan, it is learned, will include mechanization of the entire army, save for "ornamental" corps such as the Royal Household Cavalry.
High British sources watched the Central European situation aroused by the rearmament of Germany. They took some optimism from the results of last week's diplomatic conferences at Paris in which the Near Eastern countries were reported to have emphasized anew their readiness to act with France, Britain and the League of Nations, presumably in the event of a German attack on Austria.
In contrast, however, some concern was expressed over the impending ratification by the Chamber of Deputies of the French-Soviet mutual assistance pact, expected to be given tomorrow.
Informed British sources said this pact would offer a strong setback to German foreign policy, ending in failure the Reich's reported attempts to prevent a rapprochement between Russia and Western Powers.

CHARGES U. S. BUREAU WON'T SEND FOOD TO SICK ESKIMOS

Head of Presbyterian Mission at Barrow, Alaska, Seeks Supplies for Mumps Sufferers.

BARROW, Alaska, Feb. 10.—Dr. Henry W. Greist, in charge of the Presbyterian Mission, said today that Indian Bureau officials at Juneau had refused him food and fuel for Eskimos who are quarantined here and along the coast, suffering from a virulent form of mumps.
"With temperatures below zero outside, the sole heat in many igloos is merely that generated by bodies of the inmates, who eat frozen, half-rotten walrus meat, uncooked, while the children cry for bread," said Dr. Greist. "The wireless from Juneau told the natives to go out and kill whale or seal and burn blubber. There was to be no coal at Government expense."
At Juneau, Charles W. Hanks, north, assistant director of the Bureau of Indian Affairs, said he had

AMERICAN FINED $500 IN CHINA

Admits Trying to Help Communist Spy Escape From Prison.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 10.—Eugene Brinson of Savannah, Ga., pleaded guilty today in a United States court to attempting to assist a convicted Communist spy to escape from a Chinese prison. He was fined $500 in gold and a sentence of six months in jail was suspended.
Similar charges against Julius Lemcke, formerly of Jackson, Mich., were dismissed.
Brinson and Lemcke were arrested last August after Chinese authorities said they had attempted to help Joseph Walden escape from prison, to which he had been sentenced for 15 years. The two men were said to have tried to bribe a Chinese officer.

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles: that it will be a first-class newspaper, never tolerant of injustice or corruption, always fighting demagogues of all parties, never belonging to any party, always opposing privileged classes and public plunderers, never lacking sympathy with the poor, always remaining devoted to the public welfare; never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Plumage in Farm Valuation.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE farm situation in this section for the past three years has been a depressing one—two years of drought and chinch bugs; the third year, continual rain until too late to plant a crop. The farmers are all in pretty bad shape financially.

I owned a farm of 101½ acres, generally considered a good farm, but mortgaged. Since I was unable to satisfy the mortgage-holder, my only chance to save the farm was through the Federal Land Bank. The representative for the bank in this section is a very busy man, a banker. In the hours of the night, after the town had retired, and by the light of a candle, I paid the fee of $11 to get a loan on my farm.

The bank sent a very promising young school boy to put a value on the land and improvements. He was thoroughly trained, a dirt farmer, having gained his knowledge from picture books. He was in a great hurry. He took time to tell me that he had a dinner engagement 50 miles away; that and the fee were the only important factors in the case.

He drove a big car and liked to hear it run. It wasn't necessary for him to have come, only for the drive, as the report could have been made out as well before he saw the farm as after, and if I wasn't pleased with the report, he would roar by on the other side if I would pay another $11. To walk across the farm or to take dirt samples wasn't necessary. That's the kind of a deal they gave this farmer.

Farleyism a Symptom.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

WE hear much criticism of Postmaster-General Farley as a distributor of spoils. Why single him out? Farleyism is nothing new. He is but a symptom of the spoils disease which corrupts our Government. The traffic in spoils often stands in the way of honest men, and electing fit men to office and hampering officials in serving the public. Get rid of the spoils system and the Farleys will be out of a job and will have taken a long step toward political house-cleaning. Treat the disease, not the symptom.

Fed Up With Cat Soirees.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

IN reply to the letter, "Cats and the More Abundant Life," the writer evidently does not live on Cates or Kensington between Kingshighway and Clarendon. There is an abundance of cats here and they have an abundance of life, if not lives.

Thanks to the present cold spell, their activities are curtailed to a minimum, but at the first sign of spring, they appear en masse soon after dark along the Hodiament car tracks and begin a soiree (with many cats).

As the night advances, they are aided and abetted by others until the overflow oozes into the yards and under the windows of the sleeping citizens, nor does the malediction nor slacken but increases in volume and goes around and around until a volley of old shoes, mops, brooms and what have you throwable is hurled into their midst.

I knew of one woman who threw small torpedoes which were harmless but had all the neighbors wondering who had taken up rifle practice at midnight.

House cats are all right in their place and if kept at home. No one could object to abuse of animals more than I do. But, leaving politics out of the discussion, I will say of those cats which crave a richer and a more abundant life, I hope in the future they seek it somewhere else than this vicinity.

Plus Processing Tax—and Minus.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

WHEN the processing tax on wheat went into effect, all the bakers told us they would have to boost the price of bread and reduce the size of the loaf because of the tax.

Now the tax has been removed, the price of flour and pork is lower, but I see that the price of bread and the size of the loaf remain the same, except in one of the chains in St. Louis, which now sells a 24-ounce loaf for 9 cents.

FRED ENRIKIN.

Suggested Reading for Al Smith, Et Al.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THERE is nothing that Alfred E. Smith and John W. Davis can say that convinces us there is anything but animosity and jealousy in their attack on President Roosevelt and his New Deal, which they very well know has been an earnest attempt to reconcile "the two laws" of the one for man and one for things, to which Emerson so plainly calls our attention in his "Ode, Inscribed to William H. Channing."

If the people, as well as the Al Smiths, John W. Davises, Herbert Hoovers, etc., will read and digest that ode and Markham's poem, "The Man With the Hoe," I am confident that there will be a general desire to quit criticizing the only President who has had the moral courage to do something to stay the impending crisis. It is the intent with which men act that entitles them to either praise or condemnation.

A JEFFERSONIAN DEMOCRAT.

Edwardsville, Ill.

THE NEUTRALITY PROPOSALS.

There is a universal desire in the United States that the country be kept out of war. There is profound disagreement, cutting across party lines, cutting through the ranks of organizations working for world peace, as to how we should try to safeguard ourselves against being drawn into war. The current debates in Congress on the proposed permanent neutrality legislation have brought this disagreement into sharp relief and in so doing, we believe, have heightened the confusion in the public mind regarding the whole difficult subject of neutrality.

Sincere people, unless they are able to find refuge in some doctrinaire school of thought, must have been assailed increasingly by doubts as to the wisdom of laying down hard-and-fast rules of neutrality to cover all the eventualities with which the United States may be faced. The fear must have grown that any all-inclusive neutrality policy committing the United States to a definite course of action in a future utterly unpredictable might tend to get us into trouble rather than keep us out. It is difficult enough to legislate wisely in the field of domestic affairs; it is incomparably more difficult when the field is that of international relations.

Space limits will not permit a detailed discussion of the measures before Congress and the conflicts that have grown up around them. Suffice it that one fundamental question—and we state it at the risk of over-simplification—is whether we should set up automatic embargoes against warring nations or confer discretion upon the President to impose or withhold embargoes. Those who favor automatic embargoes seek the simplest possible isolation for the United States, regardless of consequences, in wartime. Those who believe in flexibility hold that the United States should keep itself free, in its own interest and that of world peace, to throw its weight if need be against an aggressor nation.

Powerful arguments are advanced on both sides. On the isolationist side, it is pointed out that to give the President the discretionary right to impose embargoes would be to give him a power tantamount to that of declaring war. Under the Constitution, Congress alone has the power to declare war; the proposed grant of authority to the President would permit him to exercise a warlike power without the consent of Congress. The other school of thought, while conceding that this discretion might be abused, holds that to tie the hands of the President by compelling him to treat all belligerents alike would take from him a power that might be of incalculable value in preserving peace.

"The threat of the imposition of an embargo," writes Charles Seymour in his book on "American Neutrality," "is a powerful diplomatic weapon. Its possession in time of international crisis is worth many battleships. . . . By surrendering this weapon of diplomacy, we automatically lessen the influence which we can exert when war threatens."

Raymond Leslie Buell, head of the Foreign Policy Association and one of the ablest students of foreign affairs in the United States, believes "there is a grave danger that the new neutrality legislation, if adopted, will actually help the Fascist dictators in their efforts to commit new aggressions."

This (he said in a recent radio speech) is because the legislation provides that American embargoes should be imposed upon all belligerents alike. If the war between Italy and Ethiopia does not spread, this provision does not make much difference in the present dispute. Under the new bill, the President may embargo the shipment of oil, beyond normal quantities, to both Ethiopia and Italy. Since Ethiopia has no tanks or planes, it does not want our oil. Consequently, this embargo will cripple the effort of Mussolini to conquer the country.

But suppose that Mussolini should make an alliance with Hitler and these two Fascist dictators should then start a war against the members of the League who are upholding the Covenant and the anti-war pact. Under the American neutrality policy, we would have to stop the shipment of oil to all League members. As a result, they would be injured to the advantage of Mussolini and Hitler.

Mr. Buell holds that the United States, if it can do nothing to assist in co-operative efforts to stop war, should at least do nothing to hinder them.

There are numerous other considerations which call for extreme caution in the framing of permanent neutrality legislation at this time, or, indeed, at any time. We have space for only a few—they have all been brought out in the debates on the subject, in and out of Congress. One is the fact that any such legislation must be a shot in the dark: we cannot tell when war will break out on a large scale, or where, or how the interests of the United States will be affected.

Second, there is the danger that legislation of the kind proposed will lull the United States into a false sense of security: the truth is that no law can be a guaranty against our involvement in war. It is a fact, as Mr. Buell writes, that "but few of the supporters of neutrality legislation, despite all their talk of curtailing profits for the sake of neutrality and peace, are willing to make the sacrifices involved." He cites the fact, too, that some of those who are calling most loudly for a Chinese-wall isolation, through the imposition of mandatory embargoes, are openly condemning conditions in other countries. "America can keep out of a future war only if Americans will not take sides and will keep quiet."

Third, if we serve notice on other nations that we intend to impose embargoes upon them if they go to war, they will immediately set about building up, in peacetime, markets they can count upon in war. Thus our foreign trade, already reduced to a thin trickle, will be further diminished.

Because of all these and other considerations which lead to grave doubts of the wisdom and efficacy of the pending so-called permanent neutrality legislation, because, moreover, the atmosphere of the present session of Congress is not conducive to the dispassionate consideration of long-term policies, we have come to the conclusion that Congress should go no further with neutrality legislation at this session than to continue for a year the law which will expire Feb. 29. This is now the prevailing view in the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. The existing law governs our neutrality in the war between Italy and Ethiopia, and, with the President's "trade at your own risk" proclamation, it is working satisfactorily. That war being still in progress, it is the part both of wisdom and expediency to re-enact the law; we believe there might well be added to it an amendment prohibiting the flotation of public loans in this country by belligerents, for one way to discourage war is to put it on a cash basis. The mandatory embargo on the shipment of munitions to belligerents would remain; it could be changed, by a special session of Congress if necessary, should events within the year dictate a new policy to meet a particular need.

There is a further compelling reason why Congress should not attempt at this time to enact permanent neutrality legislation to cover all future contingencies. If Mussolini's African expedition fails, there is a possibility that the breakdown will be attributed to collective action under the League, in which case the prestige of the League will be enhanced and the whole case for international co-operation to prevent war will be strengthened. Alternatively, this may be the last gasp of the League. The future trend of international action with respect to peace will be determined by the outcome. We had better wait for the peace terms and see what this trend is to be before deciding upon a long-term policy.

To commit ourselves to a rigid policy now, to make in the dark and in haste a political decision that might affect the map of the world, would be not to promote the cause of peace but to open the door to grave dangers.

Further study of the problem will demonstrate, we are convinced, that the safest future policy with regard to embargoes—the policy most likely to keep the United States out of war—is to leave it to the President and to Congress, in regular or special session, to decide whether or not embargoes should be applied in any given emergency, and, if the decision is affirmative, when, how and against whom they should be applied.

IT'S NEWS.

One of the most striking stories recently in the Post-Dispatch concerned the rejuvenation of Pemiscot County's finances after five years of capable government. Here is a county which five years ago was $50,000 in debt, whose warrants were salable only at heavy discounts and whose taxpayers labored under an inequitable assessment system.

It turned for help to J. Harvey McFarland, who had served the county as Sheriff and Collector, and whose only desire for public office was to serve his community. Mr. McFarland was literally drafted for the office of Presiding Judge of the County Court and he insists upon serving without pay.

Today Pemiscot County has paid off its $50,000 debt. Its warrants are salable at par. Property has been fairly appraised and the assessed valuation has been reduced from $23,000,000 to $15,000,000. The tax rate is 50 cents on the $100 valuation. "If it were possible," says Judge McFarland, "and the occasion demanded, we could level off the county books, pay every dollar we owe and have enough money to run the county for about six months without collecting a dollar of taxes."

A county without debts, a county living within its income, a county whose paper is gilt-edged, a county presided over by a Judge who serves for the love of it—this, ladies and gentlemen, is news.

A HYMN OF HATS.

One does not have to be a prophet to foresee that the brown derby will have a considerable vogue this year, and in exclusive circles, too, where it once was banished of concealing horns. And through the same binoculars may be discerned the Idaho sombrero, casting a vast, black, ominous shadow on what it was fondly hoped, in overstuffed ease, was going to be an old-fashioned carnival.

CONFLICTING WAR CLAIMS.

To the veriest layman, it is apparent that the reports from the Ethiopian war front are contradictory and confusing. When they are analyzed by a military expert, the rival claims are reduced to absurdity.

Such an analysis has just been made by Capt. B. H. Liddell Hart, writing in the New York Times and taking for his subject the recent battle in Tembien Province. An Italian communique said the Ethiopians were "defeated everywhere"; a statement by Haile Selassie referred to "the greatest Ethiopian victory" of the war. Rome said the Ethiopians lost 8000 men killed and wounded and the Italians 743; Addis Ababa said the Italians lost 8000 men and the Ethiopians 1200. The Ethiopian claim of capturing 33 field guns, 75 machine guns, 2605 rifles and 18 tanks was denounced as "false and absurd" in Rome, where the actual loss was said to have been "three guns, 10 machine guns and 10 or 12 rifles."

Capt. Hart discounts both versions. He says the Italian reports seem "less prone to palpable exaggeration than their opponents'." He notes, however, that despite Italian claims of successive victories, the reports are silent as to gains of ground, and at times after an "advance," the Italian forces are a step further back.

The newspaper reader has already learned to distrust the communiques issued by both sides. In the accounts by neutral correspondents there is undoubtedly veracity, but these writers are handicapped by the difficulty of the country and of communication and by censorship. More can be learned of actual conditions in this strange war from the dispatches of correspondents who have left Ethiopia—such as those sent from Cairo by Karl H. von Wiegand and published in the Post-Dispatch—than from a bushel of official reports.

IN LINCOLN'S HOME TOWN.

That thunder on the east comes from Springfield, Ill. The American Civil Liberties Union obtained permission to use the Springfield High School auditorium for a meeting on Lincoln's birthday, and one of its local representatives paid the School Board $3 to reserve the date. Then it developed that the speaker was to be Earl Browder, secretary of the American Communist party. Immediately, members of various patriotic organizations protested and the permit was withdrawn. Now backers of the proposed meeting are planning to seek a writ of mandamus compelling the fulfillment of the permit, its opponents are daring them to and a lively time is being had by all.

Why don't Springfield's patriots handle the situation as Lincoln would have done? The Great Emancipator hated slavery and had no use for compromise with it, yet he went about Illinois in 1858 debating the issue on the same platform with Stephen A. Douglas. The Lincoln way was to let the other fellow speak and then answer him. That is still a sound prescription.

That Los Angeles Chief of Police would end poverty in California by meeting it at the gate with a sock in the jaw.

THE WILL O' THE WISP.

Steps Toward State Reorganization

Debate over revising political methods likely to result in continuation of states with their present powers, speaker says; points out reforms needed for greater efficiency; views Nebraska's experiment with one-chamber Legislature as "outstanding feature in many decades"; sees hope of benefit in legislative councils as well.

From an Address by Arthur W. Bromage, University of Michigan, Before National Municipal League, Providence, R. I., Reprinted From National Municipal Review.

THE signs of the times point to the continuation of the state government by providing for a legislative council, this to be composed of the Governor and seven members chosen by and from the Legislature. The duty of such a council under the model state constitution prepared by the National Municipal League is to prepare bills with recommendations and to submit reports, bills and recommendations to the Legislature. Wisconsin has created a legislative council, in view of the necessity of studying major changes in state policy. Kansas created, in 1933, a legislative council of 15 Representatives and 10 Senators. It is an agency to study administrative structure and techniques, and to suggest legislation for improving state and local administration. It has been very active.

Michigan created an executive council in 1933, but experienced with it has not been altogether happy, to say the least. Such a legislative council has no authority in state government to enforce its views other than cogent argumentation. It may accumulate prestige as it goes along, but the bicameral composite system of the bicameral state Legislature has been our traditional method of affixing legislation.

It will take some time to develop legislative councils whose recommendations will be frequently accepted in principle if not in detail. In this matter, state government is groping forward to a new scheme of relations between Governor and Legislature, and no one can predict how far we shall go. Should the unicameral Legislature win more converts, the legislative council idea should be wheeled into place as well and given a chance to demonstrate its worth.

Looking facts in the face, we are still a long way from the model state constitution, but here and there its tenets have been put into practice by the states. The amendment of state constitutions is no easy matter. The American electorate is more favorably disposed to amendments submitted by state Legislatures than to those submitted to it by the constitutional initiative. From 1900 to 1929, about 1800 amendments were submitted by Legislatures. Of these, 50 per cent were passed. This was due, however, to the fact that the mass of these submitted amendments dealt with inconsequential details against which no great opposition could be aroused.

While reform comes slowly, much too slowly for the reformer, we are a democracy and not a dictatorship. Able and forceful leadership is necessary to convince the people that reforms are to their advantage. This is democracy's solemn obligation. Today, as in 1906, when he delivered them, these words of Elihu Root ring true: "The true and only way to preserve state authority is to be found in the awakened conscience of the states, their broadened views and higher standard of responsibility to the general public; in effective legislation by the states, in conformity to the general moral sense of the country; and in the vigorous exercise for the general public good of that state authority which is to be preserved."

Hoover on Farm Relief

From the Baltimore Evening Sun.

MR. HOOVER made a rousing speech to Nebraska recently about the farm problem. It contained a number of stimulating remarks. For example, Mr. Hoover strongly advocated the retirement of submarginal land "where people cannot make a living." This is one of the key points in the Tugwellian (New Deal) program, and the principal purpose of the Resettlement Administration. He advocated the encouragement of co-operative marketing. The Roosevelt administration has sought to encourage farm co-operatives.

He advocated subsidies for the farmers. The AAA was the most ambitious scheme for subsidizing farmers, for a specific purpose, that this Government has yet tried. He declared that reclamation work must be slowed down or stopped until there is need for more fertile land. Yet the largest reclamation job at present under way, and indeed, the largest one ever attempted, is the Hoover (and/or Boulder) Dam project, which, when it is finished, will provide an abundance of irrigating water and transform thousands of acres of desert into an agricultural Garden of Eden.

Lastly, he made this blunt statement: "Let us get some things perfectly clear. There is an agricultural problem. It concerns the entire nation. It concerns the happiness of 7,000,000 homes." That statement goes directly counter to the opinion of the Supreme Court in the AAA case, which said that "it does not help to declare that local conditions throughout the nation have created a situation of national concern," and stated that the farm problem is merely "a widespread similarity of local conditions."

Mr. Hoover's speech was supposed to be an attack on the present administration's farm program. There can be no doubt that it was. It was a direct challenge to the points here enumerated, it was certainly an unusual sort of attack.

THE NEW EXODUS.

From the Philadelphia Inquirer.

IT WAS inevitable that the implacable persecution of the Jews in Germany should lead to a concerted movement for their relief. The "Aryanism" which makes even a single Jewish grandparent a taint in Nordic blood has created a fictitious standard of ostracism and persecution.

This proposal for a general emigration of all the younger Jews, together with such older ones as can bear transportation, backed by prominent Americans and Englishmen of Jewish blood, is being generally accepted as the only alternative to a system which is driving the German Jews out of business and the professions, or even depriving them of the very means of existence. Sir Herbert Samuel and Felix Warburg are the leaders in a movement which will injure Germany more than perhaps the Nazis yet realize.

The details of this organized philanthropic movement are yet to be arranged, but the energy and sincerity behind it promise success. Certainly the English-speaking people as a whole have no sympathy with anti-Semitism. Nor can the race to which we owe our religion, as we owe our culture to the Greeks and our government to the Romans, be driven, like Ishmael, into the wilderness. The Germans owe much in business, music and in literature to the Jews. They cannot blacklist the Rothschilds or Helms or Mendelssohns in the eyes of peoples more civilized than they are.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10. IN the light of Al Smith's slashing fusillade against the administration, deep political significance attaches to two pamphlets now being widely circulated among Catholic laymen.

The booklets, each bearing the imprint of a nationally-known Catholic institution, quote outstanding Catholic churchmen in praise of the President and enthusiastically acclaim the New Deal.

One is published by the Ave Maria Press, Notre Dame, Ind., and carries the addresses of Cardinal Mundelein and President Roosevelt when he received an honorary degree last December at Notre Dame.

The second pamphlet is a reprint of an article by Mgr. John A. Ryan that appeared in the September, 1935, issue of Catholic Action. Mgr. Ryan is director of the Social Action Department of the National Catholic Welfare Conference which publishes the booklet.

In his article Mgr. Ryan praises the Wagner Labor Disputes Act, the Guffey Coal Law, the Social Security measure, the Holding Company Act, AAA amendments, the Federal Reserve reform law and the tax program. Most of these are now under fierce fire in the courts. But Father Ryan quoted Papal statements to support his endorsement of them. He concluded as follows:

"According to the teaching of Pope Pius XI, the principal means of promoting social justice (aside from a reform of morals) is action by the state. In the foregoing paragraphs, I have endeavored to summarize the achievements for social justice by our American State in the first session of the Seventy-fourth Congress. I submit that they are conspicuous and far-reaching."

Associates of Arthur Walsh, Assistant Federal Housing Administrator, recently conspired to play a practical joke on him in front of President Roosevelt.

It was during Roosevelt's New Jersey meeting with farm workers of various Federal agencies. Walsh sat directly below the President. And when Housing matters were under discussion one of the conferees who was in on the joke, jumped up and shouted: "What have been the losses under Title I of the Housing Act?"

The presiding officer, who was also in on the prank, turned to the unsuspecting Walsh and said: "How about it, Arthur?" Walsh blinked, but recovered instantly. Jumping to his feet, he replied: "15-100ths of 1 per cent."

The President joined in the roar of laughter.

As the impounded water crept up to the Randolph home, TVA officials placed a tent on high ground and urged the family to move. They refused.

MERRY GO ROUND

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10. — In the light of Al Smith's slashing fusillade against the administration, deep political significance attaches to two pamphlets now being widely circulated among Catholic laymen.

The booklets, each bearing the imprint of a nationally-known Catholic institution, quote outstanding Catholic churchmen in praise of the President and enthusiastically acclaim the New Deal.

13-100ths of 1 Per Cent.

Associates of Arthur Walsh, Assistant Federal Housing Administrator, recently conspired to play a practical joke on him in front of President Roosevelt.

It was during Roosevelt's New Jersey meeting with field workers of various Federal agencies.

Walsh sat directly before the President. And when Housing matters were under discussion one of the conferees, who was in on the joke, jumped up and shouted:

"What have been the losses under Title I of the Housing Act?"

The presiding officer, who was also in on the prank, turned to the unsuspecting Walsh and said:

"How about it, Arthur?"

"Walsh blinked, but recovered instantly. Jumping to his feet, he replied:

"13-100ths of 1 per cent."

The President joined in the roar of laughter.

TVA Eviction.

TVA has encountered a snag in the person of Mattie Randolph.

Mattie is a Valley resident whose opposition to change threatened the functioning of the entire $38,000,000 Norris Dam.

Mattie had a home in the reservoir area, and she declared she wouldn't move out. TVA's Family Removal Section had gently persuaded 3000 other families to sell their property and move—but not Mattie.

She declared she would hold on in spite of hell and high water. And she did.

As the impounded water crept up to the Randolph home, TVA officials placed a tent on higher land and urged the family to move. They refused.

The water came higher. TVA tied a boat to her doorstep. Still the Randolphs held on.

When the water advanced further, TVA officials were obliged to step in and evict by force. They removed all belongings to a new site and set up two tents there.

TVA points out this is the only case in 3000 where they have been obliged to evict.

Family Trouble.

The rampaging of Gov. Gene Tallmadge, Al Smith and the Republican party is not the least of Jim Farley's troubles.

Behind the scenes, Jim is having a hard time trying to keep peace within his own Democratic ranks.

At the moment two state hot spots are furling the Farley brow—Maine and Michigan.

In Michigan National Committee Chairman Horatio J. Abbott and former Gov. William A. Comstock, both loyal Democrats, have thrown down a defiant challenge to Farley over the latter's support of the New Deal.

At press conferences Jim has stated that the Democrats would not oppose Couzens when he comes up for re-election this year. Couzens is a Republican, but he has consistently supported New Deal measures and in the 1934 election gave no aid or comfort to Senator Arthur Vandenberg, his Republican colleague.

Abbott and Comstock, however, are not impressed by such considerations.

To them, Couzens is a Republican regardless of his pro-administration record and they are determined to lick him—Farley or no Farley. They have notified Jim that the White House endorses Couzens. Comstock will enter the lists against him on the Democratic ticket.

Such a situation might prove a very grave matter to Roosevelt.

Michigan is already a highly debatable territory and to have the State organization at loggerheads with the national ticket during the campaign might be fatal.

Maine Ruckus.

The Maine ruckus extends right into the inner council.

When the work-relief organization was being set up, Louis J. Brann, Democratic Governor of the State, demanded the right to name the Maine State Administrator. He threatened that if not given this prize plum he would not run for re-election.

Since Maine is very much in the doubtful column, this threat assumed serious proportions. Farley backed up Brann's demand, but WPA Boss Harry Hopkins and Representative Edward J. Moran, Maine Democrat and militant liberal, refused to yield. And they won. The President approved their choice—Prof. Albert Abrahamson of Bowdoin College.

The young economics professor has made a brilliant record. Although among the last of the State Administrators to be named, he not only filled his work-relief quota on time, but accomplished so many economies that he was able to increase the program 10 per cent without additional funds.

Despite this record, however, Brann recently demanded Abrahamson's scalp, again threatening not to run. And again Farley backed him.

Several weeks of fierce internal fighting ensued.

Moran told the President that, despite Brann's claim to popularity, he was perhaps ought to know of New Deal loyalty, actually he was constantly denouncing administration policies in Maine and was a distinct liability to the President.

On a second time Roosevelt ruled against Farley. Abrahamson stayed and Brann went through with his threat, announcing he would not be a candidate for re-election.

Jim is still wearing his famous smile, but he won't discuss the matter publicly.

Roosevelt Children.

By request of the young Roosevelts, the First Lady seldom refers to her children when speaking for publication. However, when asked if her sons and Anna were going to attend the President's birthday ball, Mrs. Roosevelt said:

"I don't keep such close tabs on the social engagements of my children. I perhaps ought to know the boys at Harvard are in the throes of examinations. I get detailed accounts of what examinations have to be taken, but that is about all."

Quotable.

Most eager member of the throng which crowded the Supreme Court on Monday in anticipation of the Tennessee Valley Authority decision was Representative John J. McSwain.

As chairman of the Military Affairs Committee, the tall South Carolinian was in charge of the legislation when it passed the House.

When the Court failed to hand down its ruling, McSwain went to lunch with two friends in the handsome cafeteria in the west end of the Supreme Court building.

They were in the middle of their lunch when the group noticed Justice Harlan F. Stone, accompanied by his wife, sit down at the next table.

McSwain greeted the Justice. "We were just discussing legal matters," he said jocularly. "But I guess we had better stop now."

"By no means," remonstrated Stone. "Go right ahead. Don't mind me."

"Oh, I don't care how much you quote me," laughed Stone. "I only wish some other would do so."

General Johnson's Article

Says Edward F. McGrady, Originator of Toledo Plan, Is Most Fair-Minded Labor Arbitrator.

By GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10. — E. F. McGrady's Toledo plan to settle labor disputes, which has been described in this column, is working well in Toledo. That city, which formerly threatened with industrial disruption, has not had a serious strike since McGrady's plan went into effect. Now the idea is spreading elsewhere.

Fiorella LaGuardia wants the Toledo plan established in New York. There is a movement to install it in Philadelphia. I heard a great deal of demand for it on the Pacific Coast.

No one has done more valuable and constructive work in the settlement of labor disputes. Single-handed, McGrady is more effective than any Labor Board we ever had. The Communists call him "Strikebreaker McGrady" and "Public Enemy No. 2." Recently, because he made a pro-Roosevelt speech to a labor union and, when they cheered, said it was an answer to the "money bags," the reactionary press is panning him as a rabble-rouser and inciter to class war. A man who can get such equality of dead-ends from each of the extremes must be a pretty fair middle-of-the-road administrator.

That is what McGrady is. He goes away with the respect of both sides of every labor dispute, even when he does not succeed in settling it—which is not often.

That speech came right after the Liberty League dinner with its charge of Communism and unrestrained war-whoops against the New Deal. McGrady was getting tired of being called a Communist.

He is a fiery Irishman. The "money bags" speech may not have been good judgment in an Assistant Secretary of Labor, but considering all circumstances, it was excellent Irish. It does not in the least impair the great usefulness of Edward McGrady—at least not among the hundreds of leading industrialists who know him as a loyal labor man who is fair-minded to opponents in any dispute.

5-YEAR TOPS MAJOR STEEL STOCK GROUP

News From This Industry
Is Favorable to the Constructive Side of Market
—Advances in Specialties

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—Steel stocks jumped into the lead in today's market, major issues in this group establishing new five-year tops with gains of 1 to 3 or more points.

In other departments advances ranged from fractions to a point or more. Grains were lower, approximately 2,550,000 shares of common stock were sold in the market.

The steel response to an optimistic batch of news, including official estimates of a sharp upturn in the current mill operating rate. The market also got a boost from transactions in the final hour.

The utilities were lively in the morning, but turned quiet when no TVA decision was forthcoming from the Supreme Court. The power interests, however, generally held fractional gains. Some of the aircraft, rails and specialties pushed ahead.

Bonds were steady and cotton was at its higher. Grains were lower. The dollar moved up in terms of the principal foreign exchanges.

Among conspicuous share gainers were U. S. Steel common and preferred, Bethlehem common, Republic, American Telephone, Consolidated Gas, Case, General Electric, Westinghouse, Caterpillar Tractor and General Motors.

Wheat ended with declines of 1 to 1 1/2 cents a bushel and corn was off 1/4 to 1/2 cent. At Winnipeg wheat dropped 2 1/2 to 3 cents a bushel. Cotton gained 10 to 45 cents a bale.

The French franc, at mid-afternoon, was down .004 of a cent at 6.69 cents and guilders and Swiss francs were down .01 of a cent each. Sterling eased 3/4 of a cent at $5.01 1/2.

The Canadian dollar was 1-32 of a cent lower at 100.18 1/2 cents.

Constructive interpretations were placed on the report of the U. S. Steel Corp. showing an increase of nearly 60,000 tons in January shipments of finished steel products over the previous month. The report was the best for any January since 1931.

Bullish influences were seen in expanding bank clearings, freight car loadings and electric power production. Extremely cold weather was taking its toll in several lines while bringing improvement to others.

The matter of higher Federal taxes to support the administration's farm relief program, the soldiers' bonus and other activities was being studied carefully in the financial district with the thought that earnings of many corporations may be reduced by the necessity of providing greater governmental revenues.

Markets apparently paid little attention to predictions of further gold exports. As a matter of fact, banking quarters expressed much satisfaction with the policy of the Treasury to license shipments of the yellow metal at any time foreign currencies advance to such a level that exports are profitable. It was pointed out that the willingness to give up gold placed the dollar on a really sound footing.

Steel Market Summary.
The magazine "Steel" said that further improvement in railroad and general manufacturing requirements was doing much to bolster steel mill operations. It was noted, however, that the automobile outlook was still cloudy, although it was thought a pickup in this industry could be expected soon.

The magazine also pointed out that scrap prices have risen almost continuously for eight months, with the publication's composite last week rising 13 cents to $13.42, which was $1.76 higher than a year ago.

CLEVELAND, Feb. 10.—"Indicating underlying strength in iron and steel," said a report from the Cleveland office of the American Iron and Steel Institute, "the week ending Feb. 7, 1936, was the best since Jan. 6, 1935, when production was at 54.6 per cent of capacity."

"This is the first evidence of a definite trend in production which has been developed despite slackened consumption in the automobile and other lines," the report stated.

"The principal gain in steel works operations last week was at Chicago, up six points to 58 per cent, and where the steel trade is expected to continue to be a high level."

"Scrap prices have risen almost continuously for eight months, and last week advanced 13 cents to $13.42—$1.76 higher than a year ago."

EX-OFFICER QUESTIONED IN UNSOLVED MURDERS

Offered to Help Mineola (N. Y.) Police Find Killer of 15-Year-Old Mary O'Connor.

By the Associated Press.
MINEOLA, Feb. 10.—A former police sergeant was committed to an asylum for observation yesterday following questioning by police in connection with several murders.

Dr. Richard Hoffman, who examined the man, said he had a psychopathic personality with paranoid tendencies.

The commitment, to which the former sergeant consented, was to the State Asylum at Kings Park for 30 days, during which further observation of his condition will be made. District Attorney Martin W. Littleton said no criminal charges had been made and that the man's story of innocence had not been broken down under the lengthy questioning.

The former officer was taken in custody Saturday night, three weeks after he had gone to police and offered to help solve the murder of 15-year-old Mary O'Connor. The O'Connor girl disappeared from her father's home in Rockaway Park Jan. 28, 1933 and was found dead six days later, the victim of an attack and mutilation.

He was questioned also about the fatal beating of Fred Hart, on Dec. 19, 1932, in Hart's Rockaway Park speakeasy, and about the unsolved 3-X murders of 1930.

In the 3-X murders, a maniacal killer of "petters" shot two young men while they were seated in parked automobiles with young woman friends. The fanatic, signing himself "3-X," wrote insulting notes to the police, taunting them with their inability to catch him.

MISSOURI PRISON FARM GUARD SUSPENDED PENDING HEARING

Action Follows Marriage and Escape of Convict Serving Life Term.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 10.—Suspension of J. G. Clarkson as guard in charge of trusty convicts on the Missouri prison farm, eight miles northwest of Jefferson City, pending inquiry into alleged lack of discipline, was announced today by the State Penal Board. Stephen E. Hunter, director of penal institutions and chairman of the board, said no date had been fixed for the hearing.

The suspension of Clarkson resulted from the escape from the farm of George Smith, a St. Louis life term convict also known to prison officials as Smith and Singer, Jan. 3. After Smith's escape, he was arrested in Chicago a month later, prison officials learned Smith's wife had married Hazel Wade, who resided on a farm adjoining the prison farm, a month before his escape, and that she had accompanied him when he fled. Smith's wife was returned to the prison Feb. 3. His bride came back with him and returned to her home. Inquiry has indicated that Smith's wife had considerable freedom at the farm, as a clerk and mail orderly, and that his movements were not closely checked.

The prison farm has a convict population varying from 80 to 150. The convicts are divided into two camps. One guard is assigned to each camp.

New Deal's Effect in 1935 On Urban League Activity

Government Took Over Much of Work Here-fore Almost a Monopoly Among Negroes, Annual Report Says.

The human side of the Negro's struggle to find a place in industry was stressed in the seventeenth annual report of the Urban League of St. Louis, issued today under the signature of Bishop William Scarlett, president of the league, which is designed to better the economic and sociological position of the Negro race.

Work of the league in 1935 underwent a change in perspective, the report stated, because the functioning of New Deal programs took over "much of the work we had heretofore emphasized as an almost exclusive monopoly among Negroes."

Statistics were presented showing that applicants for employment dropped from 45,000 in 1934 to 30,000 last year, as compared with 64,000 in 1933, before the New Deal programs were under way. Job placements by the league last year were 1314, virtually the same as in the previous year.

Permanent placements, however, totaled 1024 last year, an increase of 11.6 per cent over those obtained in 1934. The increase was entirely in jobs for women, 95 per cent of them employed in domestic or personal service. The same field accounted for 72 per cent of the jobs found for men.

Many Jobs Unsatisfactory.
Many jobs offered were lost because of unsatisfactory conditions, the report pointed out, observing that about 600 domestic service places were offered with compensation ranging "from board and room without any wages to $3 and $4 a week and from 50 cents to $1 a day for day work." The placement secretary refused to send any workers "on any such wage scale."

Contacts by the league's interviewers, it continued, "uncovered many facts about the real problems facing Negro workers in a critical labor market, causing the league to divert its emphasis from placement work to labor relations and organizational activities."

As examples of discrimination against Negroes, the labor relations division cited cases to show the risks a Negro takes if he encourages his fellow workmen to improve conditions of their employment.

"A Negro cleaner, for 11 years without anything against his record, was 'fired' peremptorily," the report stated, "when caught at work without using goggles. This was his penalty for violating one of the company rules, but this rule is seen ignored every day by numbers of cleaners. This man had been complaining to his fellow workers about certain unfair conditions surrounding their work and had talked organization to them. There is a veritable store-house of experiences in the records of this department, from gang fights, where white workers literally drove Negroes off jobs, and vice-versa, to more subtle forms of 'gentlemen agreements' which were effective in confining Negroes to the most common work at low pay or no employment at all."

Situation in the A. F. of L.
The league took occasion to point out it is not antagonistic to the American Federation of Labor as a whole "for its various unfair union practices against the Negro worker," because there are some locals which accept Negro members. The league, however, will continue opposition to other unions affiliated with the A. F. of L., who use an exclusive policy against Negroes when they are qualified and seek admission."

After submitting detailed statistics of organization work among Negroes, the report stated the outstanding accomplishment was the organization of Negro Motion Picture Projectionists, who now have "an A. F. of L. charter in spite of a clause in the local union constitution which states only white men are eligible for membership." Projectionists who used to get from $10 to $25 a week, working 12-hour shifts, now average $37.50 weekly, with hours reduced to six a day, "and everybody concerned is happy."

U. S. ARCHEOLOGISTS DISCOVER 37 PAPYRI NEAR BEERSHEBA

Earliest is Dated in First Year of Emperor Justin II of Eastern Roman Empire.

By the Associated Press.
JERUSALEM, Feb. 10.—(Palmer Agency)—The American Expedition, associated with the British School of Archaeology, reported yesterday the discovery of 37 papyri at Ajlul Al-Hafir near Beersheba.

The earliest papyrus is dated 565, the first year of the reign of Emperor Justin II of the Eastern Roman Empire. The latest are dated during the eighth century.

The expedition also announced the discovery of a dozen pages of a Latin-Greek vocabulary relating to the fourth book of Virgil's Aeneid.

Among the papyri rolls are two which are reported to reveal the earliest specimen of Arabic writing ever found in Palestine.

How Is Your Weather?
One-Half Indian Boy.
Haile Selassie's Dilemma.
Looks Like War, Somewhere.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE.
(Copyright, 1936.)

THIS column goes to a good many cities, some complaining of the weather. How is it in your city? In New York, its streets covered with almost impenetrable ice, harder than the pavement beneath, with thousands of men chipping at the ice gently snow began falling and fell for hours. Then it rained, promising sleet, then more snow. Other Mayors need not envy La Guardia, Mayor of 7,000,000 irritable New Yorkers.

People blame him for not doing the impossible, blame him also for the snow and the weather. What would happen if nature took a queer turn and filled the streets of New York or Chicago with snow up to the second or third story? How many would get out?

That would probably not happen to New York City, protected by latent heat, stored up in the Atlantic.

Charles Curtis, once Vice-President, was the first of Indian blood to come within actual reach of the White House. As a boy he "lived" the life of any other Indian child with the Kaws tribe, in Kansas. He had one Yankee, one Indian grandmother. To the latter, named Papan, who was part French, Curtis owed his rise. She sent him from the tribe to live among whites and go to the white man's school.

Proud of his Indian grandmother, Curtis' office in Washington was full of relics of the Kaw tribe. His black hair and high cheek bones made his Indian ancestry clear. When he was 8 years old the Cheyenne Indians attacked his tribe, the Kaws. Young Charlie slipped through the Cheyenne lines, went nearly 60 miles to Topeka. The Cheyennes had stamped the Kaw horses. He went on foot and got United States cavalry to rescue the Kaw tribe.

The only one in his tribe who could speak English, his life was a real Fenimore Cooper story. Wise old Papan, his Indian grandmother, said when she was moved away to a new reservation in Oklahoma and little Charlie wanted to go along: "Go back to the white people, the world belongs to them."

Laurence Stallings, who knows about war, has been in Ethiopia, says Italy has had it entirely her own way so far. The able Turkish General retained by Ethiopia, Wehbi Pasha, has begged Haile Selassie to divide his men into small groups of 2500, to harass Italian lines with guerrilla warfare instead of putting 50,000 in a bunch to be mowed down by Italian machine guns.

According to Stallings, Haile Selassie refuses for the interesting reason that he is afraid to trust his men in small independent groups; they might take it into their heads to fight against him. He continues massing his men in big armies that supply good material for Italian machine guns, because he cannot trust them in small units.

The newspaper heading "Britain Is Doubling Her Defense Plans to Offset Germany" should interest somebody in America. This country is not planning to "offset Germany," but it has all Europe, including Russia and all Asia to think about in these trying days. We should perfect our "defense plans" and particularly our Attack Plans. Then we should ask the world to look over our equipment and realize that it would be foolish to attack.

Interesting, useful experiments continue, our army bombing American cities air bases and so on, theoretically. Army flyers on Saturday successfully bombed the air base at Concord, N. H., with 16 army planes. Next week 30 planes will begin winter tests.

Everybody knows now that bombs can destroy cities and air bases. The question is how to protect cities from bombs.

The United States, above all nations, is interested in trans-Atlantic and trans-Pacific flying. Germany will send us a gigantic dirigible, biggest in the world. It probably never will, but it could bring enough poison gas and explosives to wipe out New York. France is building a giant heavier-than-air ship to fly any ocean. What Russia and Japan may have we do not know. We might find out suddenly. Such things might arise, without sending word ahead.

Col. Knox, who expects to be very busy at the Cleveland convention, says the "New Deal" is running up a deficit of $14,500,000,000.

THE MARCH OF FASHION

By Sylvia Stiles

STRIKING colors and fabric variety were fashionable accents of the Webster College formal prom held at the Missouri Athletic Association recently and attended by both alumnae and students. Bright printed frocks provided gay splashes of color as did the appearance of turquoise blue, tangerine and carmine red. The materials ranged from velvets to nets with beaded crepe also bidding for style honors.

Miss Junea Doerr, president of the senior class, who was in charge of the arrangements for the dance, wore a distinctive frock of tangerine velvet and crepe beaded with silver and rhinestones. The bias skirt extended above the waistline into an inverted V at the center front and emphasized the princess styling of the costume. The bodice, except for this plastron, was beaded in a floral design. Narrow beaded straps extended over the shoulders and held in place at the back the circular beaded cape that dropped low on the shoulders. A wide belt of the fabric looped at the center front, the ends being finished with beaded borders. Silver slippers completed the color scheme.

Miss Ruth Fabick was attractive in a dress of flame colored velvet which introduced a bodice covered with silver sequins. The neckline was of the halter type. The skirt was moulded and followed princess lines. Silver slippers were effective with this frock.

Black Velvet. Another lovely velvet dress was worn by Miss Mary Clare Kline. It was black and was enhanced in richness by a banding of Irish lace outlining the square neckline. Sleeves were long and tight and pointed at the wrists. The skirt was paneled, the back panel extending longer to form a slight train.

Another stunning black dress was that of Miss Dianne Pauley. It was black in combination with carmine red. The bodice was cut with a ruffled neckline, the ruffles covering the shoulders and outlining the square shaped back decollete. Four red roses were placed in a row across the back of the waistline and held in place a red sash which had long ends. Four ruffles finished the blue hemline of the skirt, emphasizing its buoyancy.

There were tiny red ribbon bows quite tailored in appearance, to trim the ruffles, one group being placed at an angle across the ruffles at the back and another group across the front. Red sandals were an artistic accent to this becoming costume.

Miss Helen Mary McLeod also appeared in a black frock, the lines of which were tailored and very distinctive. The skirt was slashed at the hemline at either side and had a short train which fell in three soft folds. The bodice was designed with a low square neckline both front and back, the squareness accentuated by the narrow shoulder straps of black and crystal bands. The beaded decoration continued around the bodice top and formed a flat bow at the center front. Sandals combined black and silver.

Blue Chiffon. Another pretty pink costume was that of Miss Ann Schleuter. It was of lace and had a cleverly styled jacket which the wearer did not remove. This jacket had a tailored neckline and short sleeves with turned back cuffs. A little plume of the lace was cut circular and starched so that it rippled. The skirt was bias and quite wide at the hemline.

Miss Elizabeth Halpen wore a charming frock of turquoise blue chiffon that bordered Grecian lines. The bodice was quite full and draped, the drapery being caught at either shoulder with rhinestone clips. The back extended to a low V line. A rhinestone buckle matching the clips fastened the chiffon belt. The skirt was quite fitted through the hips but displayed graceful fullness at the hemline.

A frock that illustrated the vogue of gaily printed fabrics was that of Miss Margaret Christman. The splashy design combined shades of blue, red and white, the blue having a peacock cast and the red a fuchsia tone. This costume was quite tailored, the draped neckline being caught with a clip which held the fullness and the skirt paneled so that soft folds appeared at the hemline. A severe little jacket, waist-length and quite fitted had revers and wide cuffs of white pique.

"WHY, Louise, that was awful."

"What was awful?" "The way you spoke to your mother. You said she didn't know what she was talking about."

"Well, she didn't. I guess I know whether I am warm enough or not. I didn't want to wear that old sweater."

"My mother made me wear mine. And I didn't even think of saying anything. If I talked to my mother, or anybody like that, she would take the hairbrush to me."

"P o o h, my mother wouldn't. She's better than try that."

"Don't you like your mother, Louise?" "Sure I like her, but I wouldn't let her take the hairbrush to me. I'd talk right up to her. You're the language worker of your mother."

"That's funny. I'm not afraid of my mother. I like her and she likes me, and I wouldn't do anything or say anything to hurt her feelings the way you did. Your mother just now, not for millions. I couldn't talk like that. You ought to be ashamed."

"Pook."

"The bell rang just then and the two girls went to class. Soon they were busy with their lessons and forgetful of all else. The teacher was looking over the arithmetic papers while the class prepared the language work to follow."

"Louise, come here a minute," said she.

Louise looked up, scowled, gathered herself slowly and approached the teacher.

"How did it happen that you finished only one example, began three others and left out the fourth altogether?"

"I don't know how to do the old things."

"Why didn't you tell me that? I could have helped you and your period of arithmetic need not have been so long."

"I hate the stuff. There's no sense to it."

"But there is sense to it. And you must get it. I'll help you after school."

ABLE and eager to please. He had just arrived at the Park Plaza and was having luncheon with a group of officials and salesmen at whose show at the Municipal Auditorium he is to appear twice each evening for a week.

We would have waited, the photographer and I, rather than interrupt the luncheon, but no, his public came first. Obliging between courses he went to the piano to sing a bar or two of "Roses in Picardy" or stand at the microphone dramatizing "Irish Eyes Are Smiling" while the photographer snapped him in action.

"You know," said Downey, "it was in St. Louis I had my first big time engagement. That was 10 years ago with Gene Rodemich's orchestra at the Grand Central Theater. I had been with Paul Whiteman four years, had toured Europe with him, but the St. Louis engagement was the first at which I had earned anything like a real salary. It was the first time I had really been out on my own. I remember what a hard time I had with my hands. Always with Whiteman I would rise and sing with an instrument in my hand, though I didn't play one. I resorted to twisting a handkerchief and the critics had a good time kidding me about it."

He has always sung, he said, first as a boy soprano in church choir in Wallingford, Conn., where he was born, and in Brooklyn, where he grew up. Then at cabarets, at smokers, social gatherings while, from the age of 15, working at anything that offered a livelihood by day. He had hardly even hoped to make a living at the thing he liked best to do until Paul Whiteman, slumming one night in Greenwich Village, heard him sing and invited him uptown for a try-out with his orchestra.

After the St. Louis engagement came a try at the movies with considerable success. He made three pictures, "Syncopation," "Mother's Boy" and "Lucky in Love." The last was prophetic in more ways than one. He married his leading lady.

"For me it was lucky," he remarked. "And Barbara seems pretty contented. She has had offers to go back to pictures, but she has not considered it. With four babies in five years she hasn't had much time to consider it."

In New York since 1930 Downey has had his own supper club where he sings every night, taking time out four hours a week to broadcast two programs each on the NBC and CBC networks, which are informed, bringing him in $6500 per week.

He has learned from his fan mail, he says, that his audience prefers him in sentimental songs and that the oldest and most familiar are the most popular, also that the more heart throbs he puts into them the better they like them. "I get more letters after singing 'Roses in Picardy' than any other. 'Mother Rosary,' too, 'Lead Kindly Light,' 'Mother Macchree,' all the Irish ballads bring a lot of letters with requests for repetitions. That just suits me and suits my voice. I don't have to keep plugging new songs, and my voice is not suited to hot music."

He prefers radio to any other method of putting himself over. "I just stand before the mike and sing as if in a small room. The control room does the rest," he said. He finished his chocolate parfait, pushed the tall glass away from him, shook his head at it. "When television comes in, I won't be so lucky," he said ruefully, the first from shadowing the contentment of his face.

He's wrong about that, though. If you like his high voice on the radio and the sentimental songs he sings, you will like the rather languishing facial expression that goes with them, the large, soulful, upturned eyes and cherubic cast of countenance. Lyrical tenor he classifies his voice. His build is about what we have grown to expect of our tenors, and his manner is leisurely, easy-going, restful.

He was attired for traveling in a dark gray suit, dark navy blue shirt with slate gray tie. He has black hair which is worn slicked back from a long part, and dark blue eyes, the classic Irish combination.

These things could be remedied with great benefit to health and comfort by equalizing the weight of men and women's clothing, letting a little outside air every once in a while, and even using an electric fan at a low speed to keep the air moving. The lack of moving air is probably the most uncomfortable part of our winter ventilation scheme.

More Moisture Often Needed During Winter

Ventilation and Humidity Serious Health Problem in America.

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

A FRIEND of mine, whose business compels him to pass the entire summer in the snake oven of the Middle West of the United States, says that he does not so much mind the heat of summer as he does the heat of winter.

He wishes summer would come along so he could be cool. I believe that this indicates a serious preventable health problem in the United States today, the movement of temperature at which we keep our houses and office buildings in the winter must be the cause of the predominance of colds and nose affections, which everybody laments. It increases irritability and leads to insomnia, fatigue and nervousness.

Strictly speaking, it is not so much the temperature which is at fault as the ventilation. In other words, the absence of humidity and the lack of movement of air. Most of the houses and office buildings have been built on such an airtight principle, with hollow tile and close fitting windows, that it is impossible for a little fresh, moist air to creep in. If we had the humidity and the movement regulated, we could stand even higher temperatures than we now have. But the dry baking heat of anywhere between 70 and 80 takes all the moisture out of our skin, our nose and throat, and our eyes.

Discrepancy. Added to this is the silly discrepancy in the clothes worn by American men and women. American women are badly underdressed for the winter time, and American men have gotten into the habit of changing into heavy clothes in the winter. An ordinary American winter business suit would easily stand a temperature of from 45 to 55, whereas, as a matter of fact, the man is placed in a temperature 20 to 30 degrees higher and is actually uncomfortable. American women are sufficiently mild over most of the country that a much lighter suit, with an overcoat adapted to outside wear, is sufficient for any man whose popular is largely inside.

These things could be remedied with great benefit to health and comfort by equalizing the weight of men and women's clothing, letting a little outside air every once in a while, and even using an electric fan at a low speed to keep the air moving. The lack of moving air is probably the most uncomfortable part of our winter ventilation scheme.

IF YOU ASK MY OPINION

By Martha Carr

Dear Mrs. Carr: I HAVE been going with a girl too old for her (11 years). Her mother told her before she died, five years ago, not to marry me for that reason. This girl lives by herself and I have no one and must board among strangers. She is always glad to go with me and accepts my gifts, but will not let me see her a ring.

Do you think she should feel that she must follow her mother's advice still, even though, at the time, her mother was an invalid and might not have thought the matter over as she should?

We are both getting on in years and I have a good position—just have been one of the lucky ones. I think she would marry were it not for what her mother said, although the mother always liked me and hated my fine. The girl has a good position, but I think she has lost heart. I know I would do all I could to make her happy. What would you do? LONELY FRED.

I believe the girl should feel that she has respected her mother's wishes; but should now decide for herself about her future. Possibly had the mother lived, she would have changed her opinion, knowing that her daughter's happiness, as well as yours, was at stake. Eleven years is not, at your time of life and hers, so great a difference of ages.

It is possible that it might be necessary to wait a year or two before to a realization of the sensible thing to do. How about becoming a little indifferent in manner and showing a passing interest in some other girl, for the time being. Then catch the effect.

Dear Mrs. Carr: I AM 16 years old and beginning to take "tap" lessons. Are slacks and flat heels all right to take lessons in, as I am pretty tall and do not look well in shorts? Do you have to have a high school education to go on the stage? SHERRY.

You may have to conform to the custom at the dancing school. Ask your teacher and, perhaps if there are other tall girls you may be able to persuade them, with the teacher's permission, to wear the slacks instead of shorts.

I would judge, if you are to make tap-dancing your work on the stage that a high school education might not be compulsory; however, you will likely be able to use all the education you can get, whatever profession you may decide upon.

My dear Mrs. Carr: I AM a girl almost 16 years old. I go to a dance club and my problem is likely that of a many other girls my age. I am "good looking" and a good dancer. I am popular with the boys. I am at the club I often have difficulty getting my program filled. I do usually manage, because some of the boys ask me ahead of time, but when I am actually there, few boys ask me for a dance.

I am worried about next time because I have only two dances taken. I do not understand this, because after the dancing has started I am continually changing partners and get only a few steps with each one. What I would like to know, Mrs. Carr, is why I have so many "no" answers. The boys never ask me to dance either before or after the time for the next? RED INK.

Your parents or chaperons could enlighten you, I believe.

Dear Mrs. Carr: SOMETIME ago there appeared in your column a request for a short-dated book. I anticipate an opportunity to try for a position where speed is a requisite, and if you know where I can obtain a Pitman shorthand book, also the second volume, which I, I believe, called "Ammanensis," I will appreciate it very much if you will inform me. There are two Pitman systems and the one I am interested in is the older.

By obtaining these books means a great deal to me, I am quite willing to do something in exchange for them. I enclose a stamped addressed envelope.

My dear Mrs. Carr: I S it proper for grown persons to send valentines or is it merely proper for children to do so. If so, what valentine should be written on the valentine by the person sending it? DUMMIE.

Certainly it is proper for grown persons to send valentines if "so be" there are still grown persons who treasure this kind of sentiment. Sometimes "grown persons" send them a mushy one and this is all right too, for perhaps St. Valentine had a feeling that sentiment and romance might be running out and the day was established as a gentle reminder.

Most of the valentines you can buy have the sentiment in so many words or else illustrated touchingly. Just your initials are enough. It would be rather nice if he had to write a little while.

(Saint Valentine was a Christian martyr of the Third Century, who had nothing to do with the sending of love messages).

My dear Mrs. Carr: I AM a married man and have quite an experience in going out with girls, but not older than myself. For four years of running around I really cared for. I have gone with

The Tendency To Continue One's Grief

After the First Pain Eases
One Is Disinclined to Resume Responsibilities.

By Elsie Robinson

THE hardest part about grief is not enduring it—but giving it. You've lost someone. Someone who gave all the sweetness and meaning in life. And your heart is broken. Terrible days! You wake, you sleep, you go about your work. It's all the same. You're in a daze of misery, drugged by sorrow. You're as truly dead as that dear one who has gone. You're sure that life will never come back again.

And you don't want it to come back. You don't want to live with your darling gone. But it does come back. Without your knowing it, without your willing it, against all your desire, life comes back. You wake, you sleep, you go about your work. It's all the same. You're in a daze of misery, drugged by sorrow. You're as truly dead as that dear one who has gone. You're sure that life will never come back again.

It has become an escape from people and things you do not want to face. It has become an alibi for selfishness, and laziness and cowardice. If you did not have that grief, if you laid it aside bravely, you would have to mingle with the world—you would have to face competition and criticism. But grieving, you can lock yourself away, you can hide in your sorrow. And no one will dare condemn you for doing so.

"Poor Sally," they'll say, "she's never been the same since Billy died. It's wonderful, and tragic, to love like that."
And, hearing them, you'll not only feel excused—but you'll feel that you are set apart by your great disaster. You're not like other people—that you should be pitied and honored because you cannot, will not, come back into life.
But, of course, the truth is—you deserve neither pity nor honor. Chronic grief isn't beautiful—it's cowardly and contemptible. We've no more right to use grief as an escape than we have to use alcohol or morphine or gambling. Broken hearts are not a rare, personal calamity. They are part of the common lot and should be borne as such. Broken-hearted people should be more useful than other citizens, rather than less so.

It's bad to pity broken-hearted people too much or too long. It's bad to let them pity themselves. I know. My heart was broken and people pitied me. IT NEARLY MADE A BUM OF ME.
her three months and about a week ago we had an understanding. I asked her how old she was and her reply was that she was "25 years young." The eyes to that made any difference, but I didn't answer. So this is the reason I am writing you. Please let me know if the difference in ages is too much or would preclude a romance.
TOO YOUNG.

While I think it would be advisable to give yourself a longer acquaintance with the young lady, before you commit yourself to matrimony, there have been some very happy marriages where the differences in ages has been greater.
Dear Mrs. Carr:
Do you think it harmful to use an eyelash darkener?
ALLENE.

I know nothing about the one you mention. But I believe it does not help the eyes to use these things, and there have been instances (notably some investigated by the Government) where the eyesight has been affected seriously, though this was more of a dye than eye is so delicate, cannot transmute particles easily irritate.

When the Bargain's Too Good---Look Out!

Thousands of St. Louisans Still Contribute to Ancient Swindles—
How The Smooth Confidence Men Work
By VIRGINIA IRWIN

BEING called a sucker isn't very pleasant. In fact, Mrs. Williams couldn't take it, so she jammed on her hat, hung her new fox fur around her neck and told her hubby she was going to visit the Joneses until he learned how to talk to a lady.

At the Joneses she exhibited the new fur—the one she had bought just that day from a man who had sneaked up to the back door—and explained that Bill Williams was all in a dither because she had spent $15 on a scarf that she had always wanted but could never afford.

The man said it was a $135 scarf—an extra discovered in a shipment," she beamed. "He said he and the shipping clerk would split whatever the scarf brought, but he couldn't tell me what company it was because he didn't want to get the shipping clerk in trouble."
Two hours later Mrs. Williams returned home, a chastened woman. "I guess you're right, Bill," she apologized. "I'm just a sucker. The Joneses say the old fur game has been worked for years. But why didn't I ever hear of it?"

Mrs. Williams' lament, "But why didn't I ever hear of it?" is the universal wall of suckers. They give themselves a mental kick and secretly resolve to be taken in again by some ancient swindle, but that doesn't bother the smooth racketeer who understands human nature well enough to know that all he has to do is hold out some kind of a "bargain" and the sting of the old bite is forgotten. In fact, the confidence boys agree that the old gags are the best and so they revive them year after year, add a few new trimmings, and a fresh sales talk and profit handsomely.

The Spanish prisoner racket is so old that it's threadbare and moth-eaten, but it appears in St. Louis as regularly as a hot summer. To vary the theme, the racketeer chooses Joliet, Leavenworth or Devil's Island, but the skeleton of the swindle is the same. The "prisoner" makes a plea for funds to recover certain baggage in which he hid a lot of dough before being incarcerated. If the sucker furnishes the money to effect the recovery of the baggage, he is to compound his investment by receiving a generous share of the hidden banknotes. Of course, the prisoner, baggage and banknotes exist only in the mind of some con man, and the investor is a poorer but wiser man.

Just as ancient and just as bewhiskered is the heir game, but witness the recent conviction of eight in the $1,350,000 Drake estate fraud. If you think it doesn't pull the big money, the suckers swallowed the fantastic tales about the mythical thirty-seven billion dollar estate of Sir Francis Drake, believed themselves, as heirs, entitled to share in the enormous pot, and sent in more than a million dollars to defray costs of dividing the Drake billions. The brainy boys behind the swindle spun a yarn about the Bank of England being formed with the Drake estate and how years of accumulation and compound interest had finally brought the Drake fortune to include all the gold in the world except that in Japan and China. They trimmed up the legend with little furbelows: Explained that claims upon the mythical estate could be traced through a son born to the Virgin Queen Elizabeth; brought in the name of England being used by declaring that he intended to use the Drake billions to finance the NRA; and to further bolster the fantastic yarn, let the suckers in on the news that Postmaster General Farley made a trip to London to secretly validate the claim.

paid $5.00 to learn that mushrooms can't be grown in chinks in the foundation. The tip sheet racketeer goes in for more elaborate organization, and set-up. Like all racketeers, there are many variations of the scheme. One way is to send a free copy of a specially prepared financial sheet to the prospect each week. The sheet seems conservative and sound. The prospect reads it, thinks it is just a come-on to get his subscription, and is surprised when some weeks later the editor of the sheet writes him a letter asking if he would like the paper weekly, without charge. If he answers in the affirmative, which he is likely to do since the market predictions in the paper seem unerring, he is then on the preferred sucker list. Next comes a long-distance call from the editor who points out that a certain stock is rising and suggests that the prospect make a quick profit by having the magazine's brokerage connections buy a block of stock for him. Again the sheet side tip, is all set to rocket. The sucker sees the stock begin the predicted dizzy climb, and not knowing that it is being manipulated, puts his shirt, pants, shoes, and house on it. He wakes up later in the bread line—just another victim of the "sell and switch" racket which the investment pirates have worked out to a science. The fake promoter goes on the clamored to be allowed to trade their life savings for stock in the company formed to market the improvement on nature. The nest eggs of a lot of people have vanished, but the grass seed gag is still cool. Every once in a while, the grass seed boys canvass a town selling the marvelous discovery at $3 a pound. The man with the crap-shooting instinct is the answer to the grinder's prayer, and there are enough St. Louisans, "fresh suckers," reaching maturity—and the wage earning stage—every year to make the business of cheating in small sums profitable. The man who can "afford" to risk a dollar in a lottery is on somebody's sucker list as just as well as the man who can "afford" $10,000 to gamble in spurious stock.

MERCHANDISE gambling is the latest dodge of clever lottery racketeers. There are many St. Louisans who remember with no great pleasure, their memberships in a hot-shot suit club—a lottery with no losers. Each member was to pay $2 a week. A drawing was to be held weekly with the winner drawing a free suit. The big-hearted operators of the lottery didn't want to see anybody lose a cent, so they inserted a clause in the membership rules to the effect that each person failing to win by the time he had paid in $50, was to receive a $75 suit. The kindly fellows who were so interested in seeing St. Louis swains sprout out in a new suit, found several thousand men very much interested in the same thing. But something unforeseen must have happened. The first weekly drawing was delayed. In fact it still has not been held. In high dudgeon, a couple of the disappointed would-be suit wearers called at the address given on the membership card. It was a vacant lot on Pine street.

To indulge their bargain-hunting and crap-shooting instincts, it is estimated that St. Louisans spend about $25,000 every day in the year. You couldn't try to sell any one of them a silver dollar for 50 cents, or a 24-karat gold brick at any price without arousing suspicion, yet they buy stock in the League of Nations and secret formulas for raising mushrooms in the basement without batting an eyelash. There is at least one man who bought a big yellow street car from a fellow he met in Union Station. The hitch came when the motorman wouldn't teach him how to run it.

Bridge Day
The day the bridge club meets means a bit of figuring on mother's part so she has an interesting dinner for the family just the same. The Problem Of Invitations And Answers

Formal Parties Require Engraved Cards, Worded in Third Person.

By Emily Post

Dear Mrs. Post:
I'll tell you something about the invitations that may be written on visiting cards, and about this proper answers to make to this sort of invitations? Answer: It seems to me that I have explained this often, but as several letters ask this same question, perhaps my answers were not clear. Invitations to a formal party must be engraved or partially engraved, or written on die-stamped notepaper in the third person by hand. But informal invitations to bridge parties, afternoon teas, buffet luncheons or suppers, to simple evenings at home, to a housewarming, to cocktail parties or to a small dance, may be abbreviated on a visiting card. Date, type of party and the hour below. And if you want an answer, put R. a. v. p. in the lower corner.

At evening parties or whenever the host is to be present, Mr. and Mrs. cards should be used. Or "Mr. and" may be written by hand on the card of the hostess. It does not seem to make very good sense, but it is nevertheless customary to answer these informal card invitations formally in the third person. That is, if you want to follow strict convention when replying to some one whom you know slightly, you should write on note paper marked with your monogram or initials or street address—without city.

Mrs. Proper accepts with pleasure Mrs. Friendly's kind invitations to play bridge on Saturday, January the eighth at three o'clock. But, if Mrs. Friendly is some one you know at all well, you write on your own card: Accept with pleasure Sat., Jan. 8, 3 o'clock. Personally I think this an entirely suitable (and therefore acceptable) reply in kind—to no matter whom. Remember that an invitation to an afternoon tea, or to a cocktail party, or to any party that does not necessitate preparation for an accurate number requires no written acknowledgement unless one is asked for.

PATHS of GLORY

Three Victims of Assolant's Anger, Instead of Four, for Renouart Is a Man of Spirit, With Connections.

CHAPTER TWENTY-FIVE

"YOU believe me, sir, don't you?" Didier asked, passionately desiring to be believed. "Yes, I believe you, Didier, but who else will? Who else will want to let I'm afraid your story won't do you much good, and it might do you a lot of harm. In the first place you've got no witness. That's very bad. Secondly, even if you had, I think the story would only antagonize the court. They couldn't very well tolerate a private soldier bringing such accusations against an officer. And they would be bound to suspect and to believe that you were trumping them up in order to save yourself. That would react against you in the worst way. Take my advice and don't say a word about that affair at the court-martial. If things go wrong, I'll see what use can be made of it later, in private conversation with one of the judges or someone."

"Do you think things will go wrong? What chances have we got?" "Frankly, men, I must tell you that this is a very serious matter for you. Division wants examples. What makes it serious is that apparently they don't care who the examples are."

"But drawing by lot?" "Langlois began. "Yes, I know. But it's an accepted practice in the army. I'm afraid that just because you were drawn by lot, your position will be the weakest. I'll have to see how the trial is going before I make up my mind what to do about that. What about you, Renouart? How did they decide on you?"

"They always decide on me, that's all." "Well, I've got to go. Keep up your courage, show them a brave front. We'll do the best we can for you, you may be sure. The Colonel himself is going to put in a plea for you. I've talked to him about it and we're going to bring out your record as a regiment and as individuals." "Leave mine out," said Renouart. "I mean your record as attack troops. Then we'll make a strong plea for mercy, or for imprisonment at most. Don't forget what I said about a soldierly bearing. I attach a lot of importance to that. The court will sit in about half an hour. Sergeant! Open the door, please!"

SERGEANT put his head into Col. Couderc's office at Divisional Headquarters. "I've got Col. Dax, sir," he said. "He's on the wire." Couderc nodded and picked up the receiver on his desk. "Hello, Dax." "Dax speaking." "This is Couderc. About the men to go before the court-martial. I find the names of only three in your report. There should be four. Who's the fourth? Who is he?" "I don't know." "What did you say?" "I said I don't know." "You don't know! But it's your business to know." "I have merely obeyed instruction, Couderc. I gave the company commanders the orders the General gave, namely, to each choose a man for the court-martial. One of them didn't that's all." "One of them didn't, you say? Why didn't he? Did he refuse?" "Oh, no, he didn't refuse. He merely said there was no man in his company against whom he could bring such charges."

Wolves Very Much Interested In Willy's Story

By Mary Graham Bonner

OLD Grandfather Wolf looked at the little man, Willy Nilly, and was astonished. How brave it had been of one small person to come out and seek a family of wolves by himself, without even a gun.

Old Grandfather Wolf was no coward. No, he had almost been born with courage. He remembered when he had been but a baby and his father had stood guard over the wooded home where he and his mother and his little sisters and brothers were hidden, there had been a time of fearful danger.

Then he had gone hunting with the pack, and then he had found the sweet Miss Gray Wolf for a mate. When their little ones were born, he had stood guard and defended his family from every one. Now he had many grandchildren, but age found him still courageous.

Besides, the little man Willy Nilly was not like an ordinary man. There was something quite different about him and he was able to speak to that Grandfather Wolf understood. "Tell me more," he urged.

"I live," repeated Willy Nilly, "in the little settlement of Puddle Muddle. My animal friends live with me. There aren't enough of us to give you so much as a quarter of a meal—not even an eighth—not even a sixteenth of a meal."

"We heard your howls and I came to ask you to please go back where it is wilder, where you will not frighten us—for we were frightened. I admit it. And, too, if you go back to the wilds, people in the countryside around will not go after you with guns."

Old Grandfather Wolf looked at the others. They had decided.

AUTHOR'S NOTE: These answers are given from the scientific point of view. Science puts the rights of organized society above the rights of individuals.

1. Psychology is merely the scientific study of human behavior and its students have shown that behavior follows certain, quite definite laws and that these laws can be learned and are much better than crude common sense. Any parent, foreman or executive who neglects to learn these laws is in for trouble.

2. I am forced to range myself on the negative side, as I think man's egotism is the greatest force ruling the world today. It is the chief force behind nationalistic ambitions are today driving the world, quite possibly, toward its own destruction. The people have been propagandized until they have identified their own egos with the larger egotistic ambitions and personalities of the State. For this reason most of the talk that goes on between nations is simply childish boasting of being able "to lick the biggest feller in the crowd." Fear is the last thing that enters their minds and often it should be the first.

3. The question "How long do you think your marriage will last?" was sent by the New York Marital Relations Institute to 18,000 people applying for marriage licenses. It's a Questionable Process

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

WE would like to have a Supreme Court ruling on what to do after the process server arrives.

We were plastered last week with a summons by a fellow who sneaked into the boiler-room under false pretenses. After reading the inscription engraved on the legal waffle we reached out with a fang-like left and tapped his chin.

The next day we were served with a process for slugging a process server. This can easily become a vicious circle.

We have read Emily Post on most things, but she fails to chart the ethics in these intimate little incidents. Emily doesn't say a darned thing about slugging process servers.

No ruling by a higher court can make a process server popular under any conditions. But we know they've got to make a living. The same being true of premiers and mice and kings and plumbing roaches.

The fellow that slapped the legal plaster on us called up on the telephone and said, "Guess who's in town?" We couldn't guess, so he volunteered to come over and help us out. He came into the office and we said, "Who's in town?"

"It's me," he said, and wangled over the ears with the blue and white literature. Whereupon we tapped him for the Skull and Keys. He came back with a petrified copy of Godey's Ladies' Magazine for 1856. That was a good year for Godey's Ladies' Magazine. But a bad year for us.

PRESIDENT VEToes $900,000 CLAIM IN LOSS ON SHOES

Notes Advisers as Ruling Unanimously Often Rejected Postnikoff Demand Is Without Merit.

HOUSE SUSTAINS ACTION 332 TO 4

Cochran Led Fight on This and Other Private Relief Bills as Raids on Treasury.

Post-Dispatch Bureau, 201-205 Kellogg Building. WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—President Roosevelt today vetoed a bill that would have paid $900,000 to A. S. Postnikoff on his claim that he lost that amount in the sale of shoes to White Russians in Siberia under a regulation of the United States War Trade Board in 1919.

The President said he was vetoing the measure on the recommendation of the Attorney-General, the director of the Budget, the Secretary of the Treasury and the Comptroller-General, all of whom ruled that Postnikoff, as trustee for the International Manufacturers' Sales Co. of America, had no claim on the Government.

Later the House sustained the veto by a vote of 332 to 4. The claim was approved in an omnibus bill permitted under a change in the House rules. House leaders recently denounced the deluge of "private relief" bills contained in these omnibus measures as a threat to the Treasury, throwing all budget estimates for regular expenditures of the Government out of balance.

Cochran Leads Fight. Representative Cochran (Dem., St. Louis), led the fight against the $900,000 claim, directing the attention of Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau and Budget Director Bell to the bill after it had passed the Senate and House. Cochran pointed to an earlier ruling of Comptroller-General McCarl disapproving the claim when it was presented in 1930. It has been repeatedly rejected.

Chairman O'Connor of the House Rules Committee, a brother of Basil O'Connor, President Roosevelt's former law partner, introduced the bill that the President vetoed. After recounting at some length the nature of Postnikoff's claim, President Roosevelt said in his veto message that there was no obligation on the part of the Government to meet it.

Postnikoff's agent sold the shoes, manufactured in Massachusetts, to various Siberian communities at the time that American troops were operating with Czechoslovakian troops. The regulation of the War Trade Board under which Postnikoff says he operated was intended to permit Russians in Siberia to buy supplies from the outside world without paying profiteers' prices.

Postnikoff conceded that he had no legal recourse, but insisted that he had a "moral" claim upon the Government. The State Department and other Government agencies claim he has in the past rejected this claim.

Roosevelt's Reasons. The action of the Federal Reserve Board in adopting regulations concerning the exportation and importation of Russian rubles, and the President in his message, which it is asserted made it impossible for the claimant company to convert its funds into currency of the United States, was manifestly an exercise of sovereign power which does not contemplate compensation for incidental damages, even if it could be shown that such damages had occurred.

Postnikoff said that he had been paid for his shoes in rubles and that shortly after the sale the Federal Reserve Board had forbidden the interchange of rubles into dollars. Thus his rubles perforce remained in Russia and with the triumph of the Bolsheviks in Siberia their value was reduced to zero, he declared.

In the present case, however, the direct cause of the loss, the President stated, "appears to be the action of the Soviet Government in taking over the assets of the banks in which the claimant company had deposited its funds and in canceling outstanding currency."
